NEW TAXES SOUGHT FOR FARM BENEFITS

Congressional Leaders Fail To Encourage Secretary Morgenthau.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—Secretary Morgenthau sought the support of congressional leaders today for enactment of new taxes to meet any increased farm benefit payments voted at this session, but received little encouragement.

The treasury secretary, Daniel W. Bell, acting budget director, and Roswell Magill, treasury undersecretary, conferred with a group of legislators which included Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, and Representative Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, majority leader in the house.

The $3,247,000,000 relief bill now pending in the senate includes $212,000,000 for additional farm benefits. The item was written in by the senate appropriations committee.

Both Morgenthau and President Roosevelt have contended new funds for farm aid should not be voted unless new tax revenue is provided. After the conference, Barkley said the $212,000,000 appropriation probably would be approved, but that it would be impossible to enact new taxes before 1939.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS TO STRESS VARIETY

'Junior Olympics' and Music Festivals Vie on Summer Slate.

Everything from hobby shows and paddle tennis tournaments to "Junior Olympics" and music festivals will be included on the 12-week playground program sponsored by the Atlanta Parks Department and the recreation division of the WPA beginning June 13.

J. L. Harne, WPA recreation supervisor for the Atlanta area, is in charge of the activities which will take place on approximately 25 playgrounds in this section.

The regular weekly programs will be augmented by softball leagues, sandlot baseball leagues, arts and crafts activities, drama study, orchestra concerts, picnics and folk dancing.

A "Mardi Gras Week" from August 29 to September 3 will bring the summer schedule to a close and monograms will be awarded to high point winners of the city-wide program.

They will be divided by classes as follows: To the first 100 midjets, boys and girls under 12 years of age; to the first 100 juniors, boys and girls between 12 and 16, and to the first 50 seniors, boys and girls between 16 and 18. Special merit awards also will be given adults for outstanding volunteer service.

Atlantans Indorse Plans for Boys' Club

Henry C. Heinz Named President of Group; Charter Received.

Atlantans are going to be offered the opportunity to support a better boys' club movement and at the same time rid their attics and basements of "junk."

The first part of this work was explained yesterday at a luncheon at the Hotel Ansley by the newly-elected president of the Atlanta Boys' Club, Henry C. Heinz, and others, while the latter part struck Tom Law as a happy afterthought.

Heinz and his adult associates who have brought the Atlanta Boys' Club, Inc., into existence, pointed out manifold advantages of steering Atlanta youngsters the way they should go. Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright said efforts to carry on a similar club years ago failed because funds were merged with those of another organization which had too many "don'ts" for boys.

Died of Malnutrition. "Mrs. Arkwright has stated facts," said Rabbi David Marx. "The old club died of malnutrition. Adults did not take enough interest. We must make a new start and this time succeed. A boys' club is the biggest sporting event imaginable. The value of boys to the state cannot be expressed in dollars and cents. The kind of citizenship we develop depends upon the elders."

J. G. Shankle, of Tampa, Fla., who had extensive experience with boys at Tampa, declared: "It takes a boy as material to make a finished product as man."

"Many young people are almost driven to desperation by unusual conditions in the home," said Morgan Blake. "We must reach youth through the spirit rather than through the gospel of wholesale murder in war."

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson said the organizers could count on her support to the limit. A third Atlanta woman vitally interested is Mrs. Donald McClain.

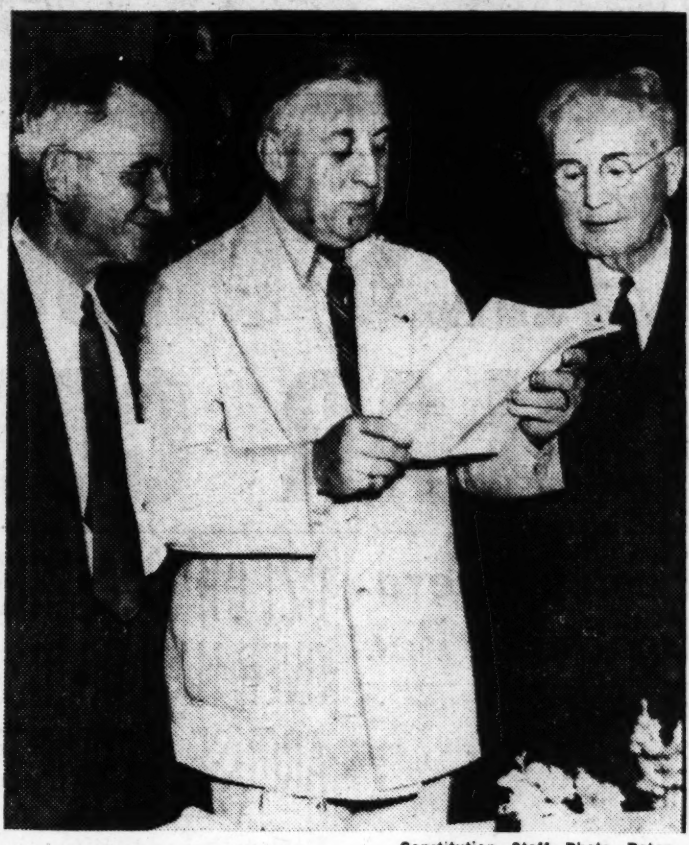

By-Product Benefit. Tom Law pointed out a substantial by-product benefit:

"The premises of Atlanta homeowners are cluttered up with a lot of junk which we might send to the boys' club at 314 Washington street as a double blessing of riddance and acquisition."

The Washington street building was outfitted for the old Standard Club, and has been donated rent-free to the directors by the owners, the Salvation Army, for two years. It contains most of the features needed for such work as the boys' friends contemplate. W. W. Woolfolk, executive director, reported that alterations would be completed so the club could move in by July 1.

Heinz Named President. An election resulted in naming Henry C. Heinz president. Hal F. Hentz and Brigadier Ernest Holz, vice presidents, Major Robert J. Guinn, treasurer and Jesse Draper, secretary.

The 29 directors are Messrs. Heinz, Hentz, Holz, Guinn and Draper, and Dr. David Marx, Tom Law, James W. Setze, Colonel Ben L. Buge, Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, Mrs. Donald McClain, Mrs.

A charter incorporating the Atlanta Boys' Club having been issued by the superior court of Fulton county, the instrument was proudly exhibited at a Hotel Ansley luncheon meeting yesterday. The newly elected officers seen scanning the charter are, left to right, Hal F. Hentz, vice president; Henry C. Heinz, president; and Major Robert J. Guinn, treasurer.

Alonzo Richardson, Herbert Porter, Nathan S. Noble, Morgan Blake, Lieutenant Commander Ernest Pugmire, Colonel Richard Stretton, Dr. Willis A. Sutton, Jere A. Wells, Judge E. Marvin Underwood, Judge Garland M. Watkins, J. G. Shankle, Eugene Gunby, A. R. Mauricourt, W. J. Sayward, I. Gloer Hailey, William A. Horne Jr., Dave Price and John S. Bick.

Included among directors are members of the Kiwanis, Rotary, Civitan, Lions', Optimist and American Business Men's Clubs and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

CIVITANS INDORSE FIRE TRAP DRIVE

Declare Hotel Disaster Proves Safety Need.

Support of efforts to prevent future tragedies such as the Terminal hotel fire was pledged yesterday by the Civitan Club of Atlanta.

The club adopted a resolution promising aid to prevent such fires. Efforts are now under way to condemn buildings adjudged fire hazards.

The Terminal hotel fire "has once more called attention to the needs of better safety measures" in Atlanta, members declared. Civitans also voted to request county commissioners and the county board of health to defer naming a head of the Fulton health department until a physician with "proper qualifications" can be obtained for the position.

CHINESE BRACING NEAR MENGCHENG

10,000 Outwit Japanese Trap, Dig In To Check Inland Drive.

SHANGHAI, May 26.—(Thurs.-day).—(P)—Ten thousand Chinese soldiers who escaped Japan's encirclement of Suchow attempted to brace today for new resistance to the Japanese campaign inland through central China.

These forces, scattered by the collapse of China's defenses at Suchow, were converging near Mengcheng, about 80 miles southeast in Anhwei province.

Japanese acknowledged a strong Chinese force was mobilizing near Mengcheng but declared it had no artillery.

Japanese dispatches, reporting continued swift progress along the Lunghai toward Hankow, the seat of China's government, conflicted with the Chinese war advices.

Japanese declared they had beaten back a Chinese army corps near Kweih, about 100 miles from Suchow, and had "cut a wide path" toward the important Lunghai station.

Chinese reports from Kaifeng, further inland, said a heavy counter-offensive eastward along the railroad was checking Japan's drive.

Hankow reports admitted a Japanese division commanded by Lieutenant General Kenji Doihara had reached the Lunghai, about 30 miles east of Kaifeng, Wednesday night.

But Chinese, they said, were attacking from three sides and the Japanese division was able neither to advance toward Kaifeng nor maintain contact with a supporting force and supply base to the north across the Yellow river. Chinese here declared General Doihara's column was surrounded and in peril of annihilation.

2 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE. EAGLE PASS, Texas, May 25.—(P)—The two small sons, aged 2 and 4, of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brooks, burned to death yesterday when fire destroyed their farm home.

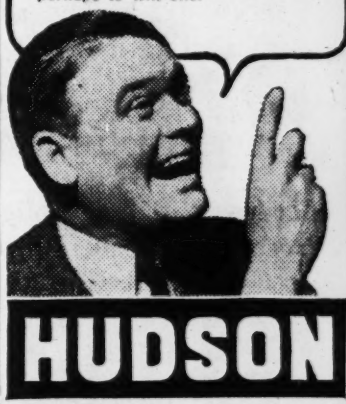

SLAYER OF THREE SENTENCED TO CHAIR

TAMPA, Fla., May 25.—(UP)—Paul Reid Bunge, 52-year-old unemployed man who chloroformed his two daughters and killed his wife in a suicide pact he failed to fulfill, today was sentenced to die in Florida's electric chair.

Bunge confessed he chloroformed his two daughters, Edith 9, and Nina Nancy, 6, before slashing his wife's throat with a razor in their suburban apartment May 2. Then, he said, he lost his nerve and wandered nearly a week before police picked him up in Tampa.

NEW MILK PRICES HERE IN FORCE UNTIL FALL

Director Charles Duncan, of the State Milk Control Board, said yesterday that the 12 and 13-cent prices fixed for milk in the Atlanta area by the board is a minimum price for the area and that producers may charge more if they can get it.

Duncan also explained that the 12 and 13-cent schedule will prevail only through the three summer months beginning June 1.

Roommate and Eggs Saves Atlantant's Life

Prompt action by his roommate was credited yesterday with saving the life of D. G. Black, 29, who allegedly swallowed poison in his room at 640 Kennesaw avenue, N. E.

J. H. Lounsbury, the roommate, was awakened by Black's groans. He ran into the kitchen, obtained several eggs, and had Black swallow the white portions.

The antidote proved effective. Black was reported in serious condition at Grady hospital last night, however. Police learned domestic troubles had made him despondent recently.

• • • Your hair line rises and baldness comes when you let local scalp disorders (such as dandruff) go unchecked. You can stop that rising hair line and avoid baldness by consulting a Thomas expert. A Thomas expert will examine your scalp and determine which of the 14 local scalp ills (responsible for almost 90% of all cases of baldness) are attacking your hair-growing structure. He will then specifically overcome those local disorders by adapting the Thomas treatment to meet your precise needs. Your dandruff will disappear; scalp itch will stop; and normal hair growth will be promoted on the thin and bald spots.

Call today for a complete scalp examination. No charge is ever made for a scalp examination or for consultation (always in private). If you do not come within the scope of Thomas treatment you will be frankly told. Remember—the scalp examination is free.

Tammany Chieftain Arrested
As Lottery's Political Front*James J. Hines Accused in $100,000,000 Case; Influenced Jurists, Is Charge.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(P)—James J. Hines, a top-flight Tammany Hall leader, was arrested today in the office of Tammany's arch enemy, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, and accused of acting as political front man for a hundred-million-dollar policy racket founded by Dutch Schultz, slain gangster.

On the sworn statement of a member of Dewey's staff that investigation indicated Hines had aided 12 men indicted as heirs of Schultz in the racket, the Tammany leader was held in $20,000 bail on a formal charge of "conspiracy, proposing and drawing a lottery." Hines appeared voluntarily at Dewey's office.

The warrant for his arrest was issued by State Supreme Court Justice McCook on information supplied by Assistant District Attorney Grimes, who questioned George Weinberg and Harry Schoenhaus, defendants with J. Richard (Dixie) Davis in an indictment charging them and nine others with conspiracy and operating a hundred-million-dollar policy racket.

The lottery, once operated by Dutch Schultz, slain gangster, was smashed by Dewey in January, 1937, when he was special rack-ets prosecutor. Dewey has repeatedly charged that Davis, who was Schultz's attorney, and the others took over control of the policy game after Schultz was killed by gangster bullets in New-ark, N. J., in October, 1935.

Davis and Weinberg were arrested in Philadelphia last Feb-ruary 2 and are in the Tombs awaiting trial.

Grimes also said it "appears" that Hines influenced and intimidated judicial and law officers and "it also appears that . . . Hines re-ceived large sums of money for his aid and participation."

Justice McCook the jurist who presided at the trials of Charles (Lucky) Luciano, vice overlord, and other racketeers prosecuted by Dewey when he was special rack-ets prosecutor.

An hour after his arrest, Hines was taken before Supreme Court Justice Pecora and held in $20,-000 bail. It was expected the case would be presented to a grand jury tomorrow.

Schoenhaus, known as "Big Harry," was arrested by detectives from Dewey's office on May 11 and is in the Tombs awaiting trial. Police said he was the secretary and treasurer of the Schultz gang in prohibition days.

Also Denounces Walsh-Healey Measure.

CHICAGO, May 25.—(P)—Revision of the Wagner labor act was urged by the board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers today as a prime remedy for the recession.

As an equally important impetus to trade, the industrialists advocated "immediate abandonment of efforts to enact new legislation known as the Walsh-Healey bill, imposing additional drastic penalties on substantially all American business."

The association's president,
Charles R. Hook, of Middletown, Ohio, in a statement approved by the directors, set forth:

"The Wagner act and its unfair administration . . . has unquestion-ably been one of the contributing factors to the downward trend in business."

Under the Walsh-Healey bill,
the statement said, "every person or concern, with few limitations, desiring to contract with any federal agency, would be subjected to far-reaching regulation by the Department of Labor affecting wages, hours and working conditions."

OWOSSO, Mich., May 25.—(P)—
Samuel O. Dunn, editor of Rail-

"the only thing that has prevented the beginning of an unprecedented period of prosperity is the unsound economic policies of government, business and labor which are due to our own ignorance, selfishness and stupid folly."

In an address prepared for delivery at a dinner ending the celebration of a "Railroad Appreciation Day," he blamed the present business recession on impeded investment of capital.

ROOSEVELT URGES NATIONS ACCEPT GRAN CHACO PEACE

Terms Will Be Offered Bolivia and Paraguay Governments Today.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—President Roosevelt joined the chief executives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay today in urging Bolivia and Paraguay to accept peace terms and thus formally end the Gran Chaco war. The terms will be presented to the two nations tomorrow.

Mr. Roosevelt's pleas were telegraphed to the president of Bolivia, Colonel German Busch, and to the provisional president of Paraguay, Dr. Felix Paiva.

Details Not Revealed.
The State Department, releasing the texts of the telegrams, did not make public the details of the peace settlement. The settlement was prepared by the peace conference which has met for three years at Buenos Aires and was composed of representatives of the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay. Hostilities were suspended June 12, 1935.

President Roosevelt left no doubt that he desired a definitive end to the conflict that raged for three years in the Chaco jungles and swamps and brought death to 100,000.

Of the war, the President said, "There was no victor and no vanquished."
"Equitable" Settlement.
He told the former belligerents that the proposed settlement was "in the opinion of the government of the United States, an equitable one which offers every possibility for lasting peace, security and the national interests of the two parties."

The American representative in formulation of the settlement was Ambassador Spruille Braden.

The Chaco war was fought because of conflicting claims of Bolivia and Paraguay to territory along their poorly-marked frontiers. Bolivia, land-locked, wanted an outlet to the sea.

It has been suggested that a settlement might be reached by Bolivia conceding to Paraguay most of the Chaco territory, and Paraguay giving Bolivia a river outlet to the sea.

U. S. TO ESTABLISH FAST SHIP SERVICE

Liners Will Go to East Coast of South America.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—The Maritime Commission announced arrangements today for establishing a fast steamship service to the east coast of South America about September 1.

The service, Chairman Land said, will operate between New York and Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine. Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Montevideo and Buenos Aires will be the ports of call.

Land said the California, Virginia and Pennsylvania, fast and modern luxury liners, will be reconditioned and placed in the new service.

$5,000,000 SEDUCTION SUIT DETAILS PROBED

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—(P)—Eloise Spann, 21-year-old singer who filed a $5,000,000 seduction suit against Milton Beecher, whom she described as a motion picture studio costing director, testified today concerning the asserted attack before the criminal complaints committee of the county grand jury today.

She burst into tears as she left the grand jury room and was comforted by her mother, Mrs. Charles Spann.

PENSION INCREASE GIVEN '98 VETERANS

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—President Roosevelt signed a bill today to increase the pensions of certain soldiers, sailors and nurses who served in the Spanish war, Philippine insurrection or China relief expedition.

The act provides a $60 monthly pension for veterans 65 years old who served at least 90 days and to those who served less than 90 days and were discharged for disability incurred in service.

Ickes and Bride Find Irish Eyes Respect Privacy

CORK, Ireland, May 25.—(P)—The bobbing little steamer Innisfallen carried beaming Harold L. Ickes, United States secretary of the interior, and his red-haired, freckle-faced young bride across the Irish sea tonight toward London and the continent.

Ickes, 64-year-old widower, and his wife of a day, the 25-year-old former Jane Dahlman, of Milwaukee, hurried aboard the Innisfallen here as "Mr. and Mrs. Woods," with many smiles and a word of praise for Irish eyes that do not pry.

"I have enjoyed every moment of my honeymoon in Ireland," said Ickes. "The people have been most kind, and they never tried to butt in on our privacy."

Married secretly in Dublin yesterday to the surprise of two continents, the couple stayed last night in a "three-room hotel in the little village of Corkbeg, where there are only half a dozen houses," Ickes said.

Corkbeg is near Cork. The young bride, who will be the youngest cabinet wife upon her return to Washington society, wore a jaunty tan swaggar coat and skirt with a beige jumper, dark brown felt beret, brown gloves, and low-cut black shoes. She carried a brown handbag.

DEATH WINS RACE IN PLANE DASH

Senator Bridges Fails To Reach Wife's Side.

CONCORD, N. H., May 25.—(UP)—United States Senator H. Styles Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, arrived ten minutes too late in his plane dash from Washington to the bedside of his dying wife here today.

Mrs. Bridges, the former Sally Clement, of Concord, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at a hospital. Upon receiving word that the mother of his three children had been stricken suddenly, the senator had left the capital. She was a school teacher before her marriage.

HARLAN COURT TOLD OF 'WHISPER ROOM'

Roly-Poly Ex-Deputy Re-counts Plots Against Miner Unions.

LONDON, Ky., May 25.—(UP)—The alleged conspiracy to deprive Harlan county coal miners of their rights to organize under the Wagner labor relations act was entered into in a "whisper room" that contained a safe filled with shotguns and rifles, a witness swore in federal court today.

The government began calling witnesses rapidly today in its attempt to prove that Harlan county coal operators hired deputy sheriffs to terrorize organizers for the United Mine Workers of America every time they set foot within the boundaries of Harlan.

Toward sundown there came to the witness stand a roly-poly man who wore a blue necktie and a rumpled suit—Henry Lewis, a former Harlan county deputy sheriff who said he had rebelled at the order to break up union meetings and for that reason was discharged by Theodore Middleton, then high sheriff of Harlan county. Middleton is one of the defendants.

Lewis said Sheriff Middleton, Ben Unthank, alleged "pay-off man" for the coal operators, and Pearl Bassham, a coal operator, gathered frequently in the "whisper room" to make their plans.

Bassham, Unthank and Middleton conferred "very often," the witness said. Then he told how Middleton one day ordered him to "Go to Verda and keep some miners from speaking."

"FREE Golden Shell Oil"
(UP TO THE FULL MARK)

—if I forget to check it"

YOU can have a lot of trouble if you run out of oil. Burned-out bearings, for instance, or scuffed pistons, or maybe even a cylinder-rebore job.

That's why we Shell dealers make you this proposition:

Drive into any Shell station.

If we don't check your oil—and you catch us up on it—we'll bring your oil level up to the full mark free.

What's more, we'll put in Golden Shell Oil—the oil that has been made especially for stop-and-go driving.

Maybe you never knew that stop and go calls for a certain kind of oil. Well, it does—and here's why:

You average ten cold starts a day. If your motor oil is sluggish and slow-flowing, one start can cause as much wear as 50 miles of steady running.

Golden Shell changes this. It's fast-flowing. The second you step on your starter, it coats each engine part with a tough oil film that doesn't break down... even under the heat of your steady running.

Remember... there's no finer oil than Golden Shell at any price.

SENATE ATTEMPT FOR COMPROMISE ON PAY BILL FAILS

Barkley's Plan To Refer
Measure To Conference Is Opposed.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—An effort of senate leaders to agree on compromise wage-hour legislation they all could support failed today.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the administration's floor leader, and Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, opponent of the house-approved labor standards bill, held a lengthy conference but reached no agreement.

Harrison has been expected to lead the senate fight against the wage-hour measure.

G. O. P. Attitude.
Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, told reporters, meanwhile, that Republicans will vote as they choose individually on the wage-hour bill.

McNary said he personally would vote against sending the legislation directly to a conference between the senate and house—a move planned by administration leaders and opposed by Harrison.

Earlier, Barkley said he would seek to have a senate-house committee appointed at once to work out a compromise between the house bill and the version passed by the senate last July.

There were indications, however, that senate foes of the inflexible labor standards in the house measure would try to route it back to the senate labor committee. Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, chairman of that group, has contended the legislation should establish variations in wages between the north and the south or between industries where conditions warrant.

Although there has been no definite threat of a senate filibuster, opponents made no secret of their hope that imminent adjournment would prevent agreement on any wage-hour bill.

Passes House, 314 to 97.
Proponents of the legislation scored a smashing victory in the house Wednesday night, shoving the measure to final passage by a vote of 314 to 97 just about a year after the original version reached congress.

As approved, the bill would establish a graduated minimum wage for interstate industry, starting at 25 cents an hour and increasing to 40 cents after three years. Maximum hours would start at 44 a week and drop to 40 in two years.

Under the senate bill, an independent administrative board would have power to fix minimum wages from 40 cents an hour downward and a maximum work week of 40 hours or more.

COMMERCIAL BELT GROWERS TO MEET

Peanutmen Will Discuss
'Discrimination.'

CUTHBERT, Ga., May 25.—(P)—Peanut growers of the Georgia commercial belt will meet at the Randolph county courthouse here Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The meeting was called to protest what the growers described as discriminations in the peanut control program of the federal government.

The meeting previously had been announced for Friday night. Leaders in the protest move say the commercial peanut counties, 32 in Georgia, are at a disadvantage because non-commercial counties are not restricted as closely on acreage.

THE SOUTH FACES CRISIS

Passage by the house of the so-called wages and hours bill brings the south face to face with a crisis. The measure, of course, has to run the gantlet of the senate. It is certain that southern senators and some others will make as effective a last ditch fight there as possible.

Should the bill be voted by the senate it would then have to face the supreme court test of its constitutionality. There is much doubt that it is in line with the constitution.

However, if it survives these challenges, the south will face a situation which threatens worse things to the economic welfare of this section of the country than anything in the past 75 years.

The bill, as now written, gives to the Secretary of Labor at Washington the right to bar from interstate commerce any products made in a manufactory that does not comply with its provisions, as interpreted in orders and regulations handed down by that secretary.

There are many small plants now in operation in small towns all over the south which, if selfishness dictated the policies of their owners, would today be shut down. They are operating at a loss, but continue to run because the entire town depends upon the pay roll. If the factory closed the entire population would have to go on relief.

Under this so-called wages and hours bill such factories will have to close. With markets in other states barred to their products, they can no longer keep up the unequal struggle against high taxes, heavy operating costs and the general business depression.

The bill, undoubtedly, was aimed at the south, no less than the so-called anti-lynching bill. Already struggling against the handicaps of unfair freight rate differentials, against the ancient inequity of the high tariff, against smaller capital investment, the south cannot survive, industrially, if the natural advantages of low cost living and other conditions are taken away, as they would be under the Norton wages and hours measure.

A recent study of population redistribution, cited by Peter Molyneux in The Texas Weekly, points out that the south is fast losing its foreign markets for cotton. This study then said:

"Without a restoration of this foreign market, only one-half of the present agricultural population of the cotton belt can possibly maintain even the accustomed standard of living, much less improve it." The survey then lists all possible new forms of employment in the south, and continues:

"But these prospects are not enough. Despite expansion in employment which can reasonably be visualized for the immediate future, the old cotton belt must plan for emigration. If the world market for cotton is permanently lost, it may become necessary for six or seven million persons to leave and seek employment in other parts of the country."

Add to this situation the devastating effect of the wages and hours bill upon struggling young southern industry and the outlook is fearfully dark for this section of the country.

Unless the south awakens as a unit and finds some new means to fight the recurring attempts to choke her economic life—to keep her forever in vassalage to the north, to hold her inflexibly in the status of a colony—this new bill may well spell the end of hope for southern prosperity in the future.

This wages and hours bill means an ultimate socialized state. It gives to the bureaucracy or Washington autocratic power over industry and it destroys the last vestige of the right of the individual states to control their own most vital affairs.

FOR A HEMISPHERE OF PEACE

Sentiment throughout this hemisphere is rapidly crystallizing in support of a joint action treaty which will be discussed at the Pan-American conference in Lima, Peru, in December. In effect, the treaty would extend to all of the nations of the New World the principles of the Monroe Doctrine and relieve the United States of sole responsibility for the preservation of national liberty in this hemisphere.

The Monroe Doctrine, promulgated in 1803, has through the years given notice to European powers that the United States would not tolerate further colonization in the Americas at the expense of constituted nations. Today that doctrine is undergoing basic changes, which will be climaxed at the Lima conference, when a Pan-American Monroe Doctrine will be studied in its final form. Instead, then, of the United States serving as a protector of all the Latin-American states, all will join in the responsibility.

The United States will probably insist on two important reservations in participation. One would be that this country would consult with the Pan-American nations willingly and gladly in event of a violation of the doctrine by some European or Asiatic nation, but that she must be free to move immediately if military necessities demand. Another would be that she must be free to act to protect communications and eliminate a threat to her own shores in event of any advance by an outside power in neighboring waters—for instance, the Caribbean.

While the Monroe Doctrine has been beneficial in preserving the independence of Central and South American states, many of these nations heartily dislike the doctrine because of the element of implied mastery. The Pan-American doctrine, then, will go far in cementing the friendship for the United States in these nations, without losing for the United States any vital right or need or anything which will weaken the national defense factor. Whereas under the doctrine the United States has acted regardless of the attitude of the other nations, even the one directly involved. Under the treaty this nation would consult with other nations of this hemisphere and would act jointly with them, although retaining a measure of freedom of action.

The pact would differ from the League of Nations in that it would permit action without movement of ponderous machinery. The ideal of the League is partly provided through the Pan-American conference, and other ideals would be provided in the new pact, yet the pitfalls which have sapped the strength of the League will be avoided. With the lesson of Europe, the nations of the new world are fortunate in the amity prevalent among the vast majority of the countries. The future rests with the New World; a future in which the ideal of peace must be the goal.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE

One of the more interesting results of the recent war game, staged on the eastern coast, is a definite plan by the United States War Department to change the location of the principal airplane manufacturing plants in the United States.

At the present time practically all these factories are located either on, or in close proximity to, the east or west coast. The mimic war revealed to army and navy authorities the fact that, in event of attack by a foreign foe, these factories would be extremely vulnerable to air bombers. Visualizing a situation where the United States could be deprived of its major airplane factories at the outset of a possible war, the department has promptly evolved a plan to eliminate this danger.

Basically the plan calls for removal of all these plants from the coastal states to the midwest. Details are, of course, secrets of the War Department. It would be criminal folly to disclose more than necessary of such plans when the country is aware of the presence of spies for foreign governments at work over here.

Of course, the possibility of any foreign power attempting an invasion of this country is, nowadays, far-fetched in the extreme. But the rapid development of war aviation and the constantly increasing mobility of war machines makes the safeguard of the oceans less certain with each passing year.

To place all factories, which, in time of war, would supply equipment and munitions to the forces of the United States in areas as safe as possible from raiding bombers is but the course of elementary intelligence.

Today, it is but a precautionary measure. Tomorrow it may be a vital circumstance in the defense of the land we love.

Editorial of the Day

SCHOOL, FINE, OR FARM

(From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)
Kansas City is considering the establishment of a traffic school so that persons found guilty in court of minor traffic law violations may have the option of paying a fine, serving a sentence at the municipal farm, or attending classes on how to be a safe driver. It has been suggested that a record of attendance at traffic classes and a diploma showing examinations have been passed would be accepted in lieu of a fine. The plan is merely tentative just now, but it has much to commend it.

The average community these days is properly more concerned with obtaining safe traffic through the persuasion and education of motorists and pedestrians than with revenues derived from catching law violators and soaking them to the limit of the law. Along with that has gone a disposition to be harder than ever on serious violations committed by those conscious of fault or in a position to have been. The principle is sound, for, after all, the security of the public is the end and aim of any proper traffic control program. It is safely assumable that the vast majority of walkers and drivers want to obey the law in the final analysis, careless though they may be in practice. The chief problem, then, seems to be one of education, and a traffic school would be that.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

STRATEGY BEARS FRUIT. WASHINGTON, May 25.—The shrewd strategy which bore its fruit in the house vote on the wage-hour bill was an evening several weeks ago. The time was shortly before the President's departure for his most recent fishing trip; the place, the dinner table of a powerful official; the occasion, a meeting of the President's general staff.

The meeting was initiated by James Roosevelt, acting, as usual, as his father's personal representative. The President had not decided just how to cut through the strange tangle in which the wage-hour measure was involved. Some decision had to be reached before he left Washington. And, through young Roosevelt, the President had given plenary authority to make the decision to the men around the table.

Of an accretion of such small incidents, history is made. But for us, at this moment, the incident has more than an historical interest. To the simple question, "Who runs the government?" the capital's whispering galleries give 50 "inside" but contradictory answers. In the quiet dinner of the President's general staff, a concrete and authentic answer may be found.

THESE RUN IT. The staff members are: Harry L. Hopkins, the obscure social worker who rose with Roosevelt. The President listens to him more often than to any other, and is personally more attached to him. He is serious, unsmiling, imbued with a sense of public service, but almost malignant in his dislike of New Deal opponents. He is the Doyen of the New Deal left wing.

Harold L. Ickes, the administration hatchet man, whose angry adjectives are a chief weapon against New Deal enemies. From the purities of Illinois liberalism, he has risen, by chance and an amazing power hunger, to be one of the most influential men in Washington. He is the New Deal left wing's only real and trusted ally in the cabinet. He was not present at the dinner, but he was invited.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant to the attorney general. Under the genial exterior of the sort of politician one sees in droves at race tracks, he conceals much kindness and good sense. His rise in the New Deal has been slow. From dispenser-in-chief of justice department patronage, his functions have been broadened. Unusually now does most of the jobs which used to be assigned to Postmaster General James A. Farley. He is the practical politician on the general staff, and a rising star.

David Niles, an obscure official of the WPA. A protégé of Felix Frankfurter and a friend of Jimmy Roosevelt's Boston years, he is the least known and least important general staff member. A plump, dark little man, with an ingratiating manner, he is well fitted for his duties, which are those of order and message bearer. Such tasks as soliciting the CIO's huge 1938 campaign contribution from John L. Lewis are assigned to him. He used to run a left wing forum in Boston, and is still, interestingly enough, officially connected with the La Follette Progressive committee.

James Roosevelt, who arranged the dinner meeting. He has solved for his father the ancient problem of men in power—finding subordinates whose interests are completely identical with their masters. He is an able, personable, shrewd and ambitious. After a period of strain, when big-wigs rebelled at accepting "an unlicked boy" as his father's representative, he is now doing his job efficiently and well. He is more a detail man than a policy maker.

Two youthful leaders of the New Deal left wing, notable for their intellectual brilliance and fondness for anonymity. They are the idea-men of the general staff, and as important as any other staff member except Hopkins.

ARMY ORGANIZATION. Such is the general staff. Besides the men mentioned above, there was an official or so from the Labor Department, present only because it happened to be the wage-hour bill which was under discussion. With or without such casual additions as the Labor Department representatives, the group frequently foregoes.

In the group's discussions, general policy is settled, subject, of course, to the President's direction and approval. Members of the group are charged with such delicate tasks as changing the vote of the Louisiana representatives on the wage-hour bill.

The position of the group is precisely that of a general staff in an army. Other high officials—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Chairman William O. Douglas, of the SEC, Chairman Mariner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., and Secretary of State Cordell Hull—have great influence. But their positions are similar to the positions of a quartermaster general or a chief of artillery. Their influence is confined to their own fields, except for brief excursions.

It will be observed that every general staff member, except Keenan and James Roosevelt, is definitely a left-winger. It will also be observed that all the staff members are the personal creations of the President; without their power in White House palace politics, they would be entirely impotent. Therein lies their greatest present problem—the perpetuation of their policies when the President is gone.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

I sailed across
An ocean blue,
But left my heart
At home with you;
And now I'm sad,
And heartless too,
Since you've lost it—
What can I do?

Irritating People.

There is a certain habit, which surprisingly many people acquire, that I find among the most irritating of human peculiarities. That is the habit of making a scheme of everything they do. I mean, plotting and twisting and telling lies because they are so obsessed about the impression their reactions make upon acquaintances and friends.

The chief irritation arises from the fact that, if you follow their information and talk and explanation, you find you have been completely misled. They tell you to figure out whether it is the truth or not—and why. And you can't help such figuring, because it is forced upon you.

While, all the time, you really don't give a tinker's dam about their pettifoggery, little carryings on.

It Can Be Amusing.

Of course it is possible to ignore the irritation and accept it as unintentional comedy.

They try to give you such and such an impression, for instance. Then, a little later, they find, somehow or other, you are in possession of certain knowledge that proves their original remark to have been a falsehood. So then their little minds fuss around until they discover what they think is a plausible cover-up for the first lie. Which involves another untruth.

They may pretend sudden discovery of a fact they have actually known all the time, but they don't want you to know they knew it. But they think, if they can convince you of their earlier ignorance, that will explain away the original lie.

Or they feel something they have said or done has hurt your feelings. Which it probably has. For the chicanery of their antics is crystal clear.

So they enter long and involved explanations seeking to prove there was no unkind intent, or thoughtlessness, on their part to begin with. And woven through the whole thing are small lies which, they fatuously think, you will accept at face value and so their faux pas or silly pretense will be camouflaged.

Of course, Basically, It Is Ego and Selfishness.

At the base of it all, of course, are two common human follies. First, exaggerated estimate of their own importance and, secondly, selfish concentration upon that same swollen self-importance.

They spend so much time thinking of their own affairs that those affairs assume to them, an importance in the scheme of things all out of proportion. They think other people attach the same importance to their doings they do themselves.

Whereas, of course, no one gives a whoopee about them. For this kind of people are congenitally small souled.

And they seek, ever, happiness and pleasure with ruthless disregard for others. A happiness and pleasure which, of course, they never find. For such blessings always elude the one who consciously pursues.

I do wish the type here described would set themselves, for a month at least, to always think of others first and to always tell the truth, in matters great or small.

A source of minor irritation for the rest of us would be removed for the month, at least, and a great lesson learned for all time. For that month of self-discipline could not fail to have lasting effect.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, May 26, 1913:

"With wreaths of roses and floral garlands of many hues members of the First Christian church visited the jails, hospitals and charitable institutions of Atlanta, distributing 1,000 bouquets of flowers, which 150 members of the church and children of the Sunday school had gathered."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Saturday, May 26, 1868:

"Mr. Giles Shoot, of Calhoun county, has a steer 23 years old, with which he has made 19 crops and is now under good headway with the twentieth. During all this time the steer has been Mr. Shoot's only plow animal. He has managed to support a large family, and while his style of living, of course, has not been that of a Vanderbilt, he has been contented and happy. In the steer's younger days his color was coal black, but now he is as gray as a rat."

Nine years later—a century ago this year—he gave his first successful demonstration of telegraphy by transmitting a message.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Mussolini's NEW YORK, May 25.—Last week our correspondent composed two little essays kidding the rompers off Benito Mussolini, his inflexible will and his invincible black shirt legions. For all these years Mussolini had been popping his eyes, showing out that property chin of his, waving his fancy dress bread knife, such as footsore suburban husbands wear at their belts at the annual costume party of the Junior League, and telling the world what he was going to do to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Now, everybody in Italy knows that the black shirts are only a figment of the imagination, that they are not so hot. The army has contempt for them, and the Duce himself has a realistic, private estimate of their worth.

There came a time in Spain when the invincible black shirts got into a scrap with the Spaniards, and the Spaniards were due to no fault of the rank and file, but to a mistake of their commander, were chased by the Spanish rabble of which Mussolini had spoken so contemptuously. This might happen to any green army and be forgotten, but Mussolini husbands wear at their belts at the annual costume party of the Junior League, and telling the world what he was going to do to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

That "inflexible will" stuff is too tempting to be resisted when it will do the trick. The same goes for that "invincible stuff." No man's will is inflexible against the world, and any outfit which claims to be invincible had better be if it doesn't want to be kidded when it isn't.

Fascists Your correspondent is still coming bricks, mortar and fragments of shattered bottle glass out of his scalp. The Fascists went nuts. Some of the letters would stifle a wet billy goat, and all of them are full of annoyance, although both compositions were only the faintest imitations of the kind of stuff that Mussolini, in his pep talks, and his journalistic yes-men, in print, have been heaving at the world in general for years.

The Americans have long had a reputation among the Europeans for boastfulness, and this is not to say it wasn't earned, although the American boasting had to do mostly with the height of our buildings, the extent of the country, the richness and wastefulness of the American people and the cost, in millions, of our libraries, jails, state universities, city halls and sewage plants.

The Americans had dough; they reckoned on European money, which is reckoned in small units, as funny money and would toss tips to the mayors of European towns and commanders of European warships whose uniforms were pardonably confused with the Lion Tamers' costumes worn by the rising stars of European hotels.

They undoubtedly were offensive, but their boasting didn't run much to military matters, for most of them didn't know a squad from a group of armies. Moreover, they had a low opinion of European civilization, and had derived from the notorious conduct of the high-born he-trollops of the old world who came over here to marry rich little American females for their money.

A Sacrifice Of Manhood American principles have corroded somewhat since then, but in those days Americans had a feeling that a man with no money who married a rich girl and moved into her set sacrificed his manhood.

But never did the Americans blab about their inflexible will or their invincible legions, as Mussolini and, more lately, Hitler have done. Although we used to twist the old lion's tale for fun on dull days of idleness and in our papers, this sport never developed the ripe, insulting scurrility of the expressions which Mussolini and his journalists have dished to all and, for full measure, sundry.

Mussolini and his press finally reached the point where they apparently convinced themselves that the lack of response in kind was due to awe of this inflexible will and his invincible legions. The truth was that most countries were amused and couldn't be bothered to talk back. More recently, Mussolini's even reported outside Italy.

Nothing said or printed here even approaches the viciousness of the internal propaganda in Italy against other peoples or the threats which have been sounding through Italy against various nations in turn.

A bulldozer can't take kidding, however; even mild kidding which touches him in his vanity drives him crazy, and the easiest way to get a Fascist's goat is to needle him a slight jab on the subject of his inflexible will and the invincible black shirts and then say "Guadalajara."

The Greatest Service to Man

Is to Enable Him to Hold Up His Head

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

All of us, except the self-satisfied and fortunate few, are often driven by remorse to wish we could live our lives again. But merely living again would not content us, for what we really desire is to be as innocent as we once were, but possessed of the wisdom gained by experience.

If we could live our lives over, we might not make the same mistakes and commit the same sins; but, in all probability, we'd do the same kind of thing, for we would be the same kind of persons. The washed sow returns to her wallow, no matter how many opportunities she is given, for that is her nature.

Our conduct, today and always, does not depend primarily upon opportunity or temptation, but upon the kind of persons we are. That is a truism, and yet it is a truth commonly disregarded by those who would improve themselves, their children, their country and the world.

"If I only had a better chance," one will say; but greater advantages cannot change weakness to strength nor self-indulgence to self-control.

"Better education would solve our problems," says another; but wrong-doing is not a monopoly of the ignorant, and no amount of book learning will change a sneaking hypocrite into a forthright gentleman.

"We need a better social and political system," says the dreamer; but any system may be good if good men operate it, while an ideal system will inevitably fail if those who direct it are evil or foolish.

We must keep in mind the obvious fact that the way to make a better world is to develop better people. Spraying will improve the fruit of any tree, but it can't make a scrub tree produce fine and fragrant blossoms, but because early training made him a decent person.

The things in your record that shame you were not the result of temptation overcoming noble character, but a deliberate choice of evil because you preferred it. But what of the man who had no contact with evil in boyhood? He heard no dirty talk or dirty stories. From those about him he absorbed the habit of being honest, speaking the truth, being courteous. He developed a taste for honor and decency and learned to abominate all that is vile.

He will be respectable as naturally as a duck swims, whether rich or poor, high or low. And making him that kind of person was a service that no legacy of wealth could equal.

Insiders who, without caring a hang about either states' rights or the constitution of the United States, hide behind both to hold their unsocial way. Insiders who respect no civil liberties but their own, and whose love of the south is forever more protested than proved. State Seeks To Develop Industry
To Make Homes Cooler in Summer

Geologists Find Widespread Deposits of Mineral Insulating Material in Georgia; "Location Tests" Are Now Under Way.

The state division of mines, mining and geology is taking steps to make the average Georgian's house cooler in summer, easier to heat in winter.

State geologists announced they hoped to accomplish this by bringing industrial production of mineral insulating material into the state, which they claim has widespread deposits of the source material, siliceous limestone.

Geologists Arthur C. Munyan and A. S. Furcron said yesterday experimental work conducted so far has shown "great probabilities" for insulation production.

They said the industry, because of shipping expense, was necessarily decentralized. There are no plants in the state, and new building activity is creating a market for heat insulation that is not too expensive, they said.

Munyan said "location tests" are under way to find the best sites for plants. He said the division had received numerous requests from industrial concerns for information.

The insulating material, which is in reality fine-spun glass, is produced from impure limestone containing silica, magnesium and alumina in a melting-blowing process. The material occurs naturally in volcanic areas, where bubbles of molten lava are blasted by wind.

Furcron said chemical tests indicated Georgia deposits will produce good quality insulation. The location tests are aimed at finding the raw material in large quantities—near the potential distribution centers.

Munyan said the material is produced in white, green and brown colors. White is tops commercially. Chemical analyses indicate the Georgia product would come white.

Not content to rely completely on these analyses, however, the state geologists plan to give the limestone an actual tryout. They are going to build a pilot plant at the capitol, blow their own insulation.

HOPKINS ASSAILED FOR IOWA POLITICS

Intervention Scored in Senate; Statement of Preference Brings Storm.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins' intervention in Iowa politics caused a furious storm today in the senate, where Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, declared the relief administrator might "just as well have put a slip in the pay envelope of every Iowa relief worker" telling him how to vote.

Wheeler referred to Hopkins' action in expressing preference for Representative Wearin, Democrat, Iowa, over Senator Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, both running in the senatorial primary.

Senator Clark, Democrat, Montana, said the Hopkins' statement was the same as saying to relief workers:

"If you don't vote for Wearin, you'll lose your jobs. If you vote for Gillette your families may go hungry."

Clark, Wheeler and Gillette joined in demanding Hopkins withdraw his remark in view of his official position.

"It's the only manly thing he can do," Clark told the senate.

COURT RESTRICTS ELECTION PROBES

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 25.—(AP)—The state supreme court today refused to permit a grand jury investigation of charges that fired the recent Pennsylvania primary campaign unless the inquiry were restricted—a condition immediately accepted by the man assigned to conduct it.

The court allowed 20 days in which an amended writ, with a more specific charge, might be submitted.

District Attorney Carl B. Shelley, who summoned the Dauphin county (Harrisburg) grand jury, started work on an amended writ he said would be more pointed.

In a six-to-one decision, the court ruled that the petition for the probe—aimed at high officials of the Pennsylvania New Deal administration—was too vague and indefinite.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

The Baltimore Sun recently published an editorial on "The Home" which deserves careful consideration. One paragraph is enough to arouse appreciation for this splendid interpretation of the vital part which the home can play and must play in the building of civilization:

"A Christian home—why is it such a fine and precious thing? Because it is a garden of the Lord, a nursery for human lives to grow in. Its seclusion, its shelter, its wise and careful culture are invaluable to growing souls, and nothing can make up for the lack of them. The home is the God-appointed educator of mankind. We have a multitude of institutions which we call schools, but the real schools, where the real lessons of life are learned, are the homes of America. We still hear a good deal about higher education—the highest that can be had is found in the lofty lessons of self-control and self-sacrifice and sublime faith and splendid trust which home life has such marvelous power to teach. There is no training to be had in school or college or anywhere else which can take the place of the discipline of a true home. Every true Christian home is a university, fully equipped, amply endowed, and able to give the highest education which can be gotten in this world."

Parents who read the above paragraph will feel a sense of self-examination, wondering how we can ever meet all the responsibilities which are upon us. Such self-examination is wholesome. Such recognition of our impotency is hopeful. If we who are parents would open our eyes to the responsibility which God has placed upon us in allowing us to work with Him in building the homes of earth, it would be the happiest possible experience that could come to our generation.

And the result—the product—of such homes will change the complexion of society. Crime will diminish, prosperity will return, peace and gladness will fill the earth. We have been depending too much upon outside institutions and agencies to do the work of the home. It can't be done by proxy. Parents can't "farm out" their God-given responsibility to their children. However busy we may be, our first duty is to our home. "He that doth not provide for his own household is worse than an infidel," and I have a notion that means a good deal more than merely providing bread and meat, and physical protection. Let fathers and mothers alike read the last 21 verses of the 31st chapter of Proverbs. Selah.

Confederate Flag Will Fly High
At Gettysburg Despite 'Yank Howl'

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 25.—The flags of the Union and Confederate forces will be given equal prominence in the coming joint reunion of the Blue and Gray, the Gettysburg Battlefield Commission announced today.

"The Confederate flag will be flown over the Confederate camp and the Union flag will be flown over the Union camp," said Paul Roy, secretary of the commission, arranging the reunion from June 29 to July 6 in observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle.

Roy commented on the protest of Edwin J. Foster, of Worcester, Mass., past commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, who said he would refuse to attend if the Confederate flag is flown over the ground.

"I bear no ill will against the boys who fought for the south," Foster said, "but I strongly oppose any plans to have the survivors of the defeated army troop the Confederate flag onto the Gettysburg battlefield. If I can be assured that my country's flag will be the only one displayed, I shall plan to take part in the reunion at Gettysburg."

Roy said: "There will be absolutely nothing in the celebration to embarrass any of the veterans. I think Foster will be here even though the Confederate flag is flown."

The Anglo-Saxon Witenagemot was the forerunner of parliament, which originated after the Normans conquered England.

ANTI-HAGUE CAMP REFUSED PERMIT

Safety Director Expresses Fear of 'Riot.'

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 25.—(AP)—Public Safety Director Casey tonight denied once again an application of an anti-Hague organization for a permit to speak in Jersey City, asserting he was convinced such an open-air meeting would lead to serious disturbances "inevitably resulting in riot."

The request for a permit to meet Friday night in Pershing Field was made by the Hudson County Committee for Labor Defense and Civil Rights which announced Representative J. E. R. O'Connell, Democrat, Montana, as the speaker.

O'Connell has declared he would speak in Jersey City, "permit or no permit." On May 7 he and Representative John T. Bernard, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, called off a scheduled meeting in Journal Square where massed thousands awaited them. They said they feared "bloodshed would ensue."

Balm Suits Racket? Bay State Says 'Yes'

BOSTON, May 25.—(AP) Boys, you can "pop the question" in Massachusetts without fear of being sued for breach of promise if you change your mind.

How Sweden Has Bettered Its Working Man's Lot

These attractive and airy apartments attest to the excellence of Sweden's solution of its housing problems. "There are no slums in Sweden," Ralph McGill writes. The Constitution sports editor, abroad on a fellowship, adds that the workingman's lot is better in the northern country than anywhere in Europe. This modern housing project bears out his statement.

Sweden Has Eliminated Its Slums, McGill Writes

Working Man's Living and Economic Conditions Are Declared Far Ahead of Those in Other European Countries.

(This is the third in a series of eight articles by Ralph McGill, Constitution sports editor, studying abroad under a Rosenwald fellowship.)

By RALPH MCGILL.

LONDON, England (By Mail).—Returning from Sweden, I have just gone over my notes.

An English newspaper today reported a survey showing how many Englishmen had radios. In America we are very properly proud of our surveys which show how many automobiles we own per capita, how many radios, how many miles of pavement.

Gunnar Myrdahl, Sweden's brilliant young member of parliament and economist of international note, had made a survey regarding the consumption of the essential foodstuffs.

In America it has got no further than a statement by Mr. Roosevelt that one-third of the nation was ill housed and undernourished.

Sweden got her facts. It was found, for instance, that 44 per cent of all farm families receive a cash income of less than $250 per month. (The income level in America is lower.)

The nutritional problem is directly related to the size of farm incomes.

LESS CHILDREN, MORE FOODSTUFFS CONSUMED

It was shown that residents in the city with three or more children and with an income on a low level, consumed about 15 pounds of butter per year. The same was true of milk, eggs and vegetables—the essential foodstuffs.

Yet it was found that people on the same income level but with fewer children or no children at all, consumed twice as much butter, eggs, milk and vegetables.

The Swedes saw immediately that if it were possible for the families with large families of children were able to supply them with these essential foodstuffs the incomes of the farmers would be raised by more than $25,000,000. Sweden is a nation of but 6,000,000. It's problems may be compared with those of any one southern state.

Sweden learned what each income group, urban and rural, was eating, what it spent on hygiene, on cultural and similar objects, in taxes, insurance premiums and so on. It was possible accurately to measure the economic importance of assistance given to the unemployed families.

It was this survey which led to the plan whereby the surplus farm products will not be destroyed, or not produced, or sold at a loss if produced. They will be "dumped," so to speak, on the market but at market prices. The people with children who are in the low income group will be able to purchase these foods at a low price. The farmer will receive his market price. The taxpayer who has a high income, few children, a higher standard of living, will pay his share of the cost.

THERE ARE NO SLUMS IN SWEDEN

There are no slums in Sweden. This is no exaggeration. They simply do not exist. I spent a whole week, eight hours a day, visiting housing projects, seeing apartments, homes, new projects and old.

In a talk with Gunnar Myrdahl he said:

"It is pleasant to know that the world is interested in Sweden. Some of the books have been exaggerated. We do not want to be content with the middle way of life, for instance. We do not want years Sweden will have done the impossible in housing.

BIRTH RATE FOUND ON DECLINE

In rural sections it was determined that more than 11 per cent of the houses had more than the two people per living room—an undesirable average. (Think of the swarms of children one may see about the small one and two-room houses in rural America.)

In the urban centers much of the improvement in housing conditions has been due to the decrease in the number of children. Substantial grants by the government, cheap loans, free land and other inducements have created—largely through private companies—much new housing.

Children are not increasing. Indeed, Sweden's birth rate is declining at a sharper rate than that of any other country. As fast as Sweden advanced the standard of housing, the birth rate declined.

Parents, living comfortably in a small apartment with one child or with none, refused to bring more children into the world. Their income would not permit a larger flat or house. Their budget did not admit a child without a serious cut in food and the ordinary life they were leading. The large middle class apparently was determined to maintain its accepted standard. It was not compatible with large families.

In Stockholm, it was found that only slightly more than four per cent of the families had three or more children. Less than 12 per cent have two.

OWN SOLUTION FOR CHILD PROBLEM

Sweden has succeeded in making the problem of children one of economics and not one of politics or morals. There is no desire to emulate the vulgar emotionalism of the dictator countries where children are urged as soldiers for the army.

America's birth rate is falling. As the standard of living rises in any country, the birth rate falls. England has gone into the problem with parliament debates and resolutions and no progress at all.

Meanwhile, Sweden is approaching the task of creating more housing and of making it possible for children to be wanted as a family and national asset and not regarded as a liability.

Sweden had done much already. Some of her methods are proved and accepted. When proffered they were regarded as fantastic. One of these methods will do for another chapter.

DR. U. M. KIEFFER TO BE BURIED TODAY

Retired Atlanta Doctor Served During War With Medical Unit.

Funeral services for Dr. U. M. Laws Kieffer, 48, retired Atlanta physician who died Tuesday afternoon in a private hospital after a lengthy illness, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, conducted by Dr. John Moore Walker. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

A native of Savannah, Dr. Kieffer went to France in 1916 as a member of the Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney unit. When the United States entered the war, he served as captain in the medical division.

In France he married Miss Gertrude Labbitt, a Red Cross nurse, who died in 1934.

For several years following the war, Dr. Kieffer was connected with the United States Public Health Service, and later served with the Veterans' Bureau. He was transferred to the veterans' hospital here from Augusta in 1924.

In 1928, he retired from government service and opened offices in Buckhead. Two years ago, due to failing health, he retired from active practice. He had lived in the Georgian Terrace hotel for several years.

Funerals this afternoon will be held at 2 o'clock at the home of Dr. H. C. Rippey.

CHINA'S HOMELESS NEARS 60 MILLION

Missionary Declares Havoc Wrought Already Equals That of World War.

Sixty million Chinese women and children, equal to almost half the population of the United States, will be homeless by the end of this year, Dr. Frank W. Price, for many years a missionary in China, said here yesterday.

Dr. Price addressed more than 20 Atlantans at a luncheon given by Dr. Frank K. Boland, chairman of the Atlanta chapter, American Red Cross.

"The present war in China has already wrought havoc equal to the entire devastation of the World War," said Dr. Price, lecturing in this country under auspices of the Red Cross.

"The end is not in sight. There are millions now dying of starvation and epidemics brought about by the unequalled hordes of refugees, besides the hundreds of thousands killed while trying to seek shelter from the invading enemy."

Following Dr. Price's talk, Dr.

Boland announced plans would be made to raise this city's quota of $3,000 for relief in China.

SCATTERED RAINS PREDICTED TODAY

Temperatures Will Rise With Showers.

Atlanta will have cloudy skies today with occasional showers and slightly higher temperatures, the United States weather bureau predicted last night.

Yesterday, breezes, combined with light rains, held the maximum reading down to 74. The minimum was 62 and today's extremes are expected to be about 62 and 84.

Other parts of the state also reported scattered showers, but George W. Mindling, Atlanta weatherman, said that additional moisture was badly needed, particularly in the south.

Hot, dry weather has seriously affected truck crops, pastures, tobacco, cotton and corn in the southern part of Georgia.

CROWNS TASTE FINER THAN BLENDS OF "THE OLD DAYS"

Experts have proved it

Seagram asked its staff of experts—men long experienced in judging fine whiskeys—to compare the taste of famous blended whiskeys of the old days—side by side—with Crowns. The whiskeys were served in plain glasses. No one knew which was which.

Every man chose Crowns. "Richer... smoother... finer tasting" was the verdict!

Finer taste always wins. From July, 1935 to December, 1937—in the 14 states that publish records—more people bought Seagram's 5 and 7 Crown than all other blended whiskeys in their price class combined.

The real reason for the finer taste of Crowns is a blending skill—a craftsmanship that dates back to the days of Joseph E. Seagram in 1857.

Wherever you buy—think before you drink... say Seagram's and be sure.

HULL CITES MENACE IN 'EXCESSIVE' DRIVE TO SELF-SUFFICIENCY

'Too Many Nations' Steering Toward Economic Niagara, Secretary Says.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull said tonight that "too many nations," by making excessive efforts toward self-sufficiency, were "steering straight in the direction of an economic, political and social Niagara."

"What is fundamentally at stake today is nothing less than the very survival of the entire western civilization that has been laboriously built up through centuries," he said.

Hull, speaking on a national radio hookup in connection with Foreign Trade Week, read a message from President Roosevelt. It said:

"This annual observance throughout the country of foreign trade week is an altogether fitting recognition of the vital role of foreign commerce in the economic life of the nation. Our own experience, no less than that of other nations, is living testimony to the fact that a healthy and vigorous flow of trade between nations is an indispensable requirement for general and lasting prosperity."

"We have profited by that experience. For four years our government has been engaged in a major effort to reopen the channels of trade. The trade agreements that we have concluded with 17 foreign countries during this period attest to the progress that has been made."

"With patient persistence we are thus gradually building more secure foundations for our own national economic well-being. At the same time we are strengthening the foundations of enduring world peace, which is so essential to the continued progress of civilization and to the well-being of the people of every land."

Hull said that the United States, in common with all nations, "is comforted today with many domestic and international problems of the utmost gravity."

EX-MAYOR GUILTY ON FEE CHARGES

Buffalo Jury Clears Him on Two Other Counts.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 25.—(AP)—A jury convicted ex-Mayor George J. Zimmermann today of unlawfully receiving fees, while in office, from an insurance broker.

The jury cleared Zimmermann, however, of two counts which charged him with asking $200,000 and agreeing to accept $100,000 from an engineer who wanted a city sewer authority contract.

The ex-mayor was convicted on six counts involving dealings with Frank E. Seymour, head of a Buffalo insurance brokerage house. The mayor was tried under a section of the penal law which provides a maximum of ten years' imprisonment or $4,000 fine, or both, for each count. Zimmermann announced he would appeal.

JURORS CRITICIZE MURDAUGH ACTION

Dodge Pension Suspensions 'Hasty and Unwarranted,' Probers Maintain.

EASTMAN, Ga., May 25.—(AP)—The Dodge county grand jury today criticized the State Department of Public Welfare for what it described as "hasty and unwarranted action" in suspending 168 old-age pensioners in Dodge county last April.

State Welfare Director Lamar Murdaugh, who appeared before the jury in its three-day inquiry, testified most of the suspensions were ordered upon recommendation of Miss Alveretta Keenan, district supervisor, because of insufficient information in regard to individual beneficiaries or incomplete case budgets and histories.

"It is highly evident," the jury said in its recommendations, "that all charges made by Director Murdaugh and Miss Keenan against this office were made for selfish reasons."

The jury recommended that Miss Keenan be "transferred from the district" and that Governor Rivers in the future attempt to appoint officials in the welfare department "who will not be unfair to the counties."

Murdaugh said he told the jury that prior to the suspensions in Dodge county federal auditors had made exceptions to awards to 2,000 beneficiaries in the state and 100 in Dodge.

Solicitor General M. H. Boyer said the investigation was the result of an "independent inquiry set up by the grand jurors themselves."

SOUTH'S OUTLOOK IS TERMED SERIOUS

Speakers at Industrial Conference Decry Wages and Hours Bill.

Southern industry is "on the brink of the worst situation it has faced in ten years," Georgia Industrial Conference speakers said here last night, calling upon leaders in business, industry and finance to unite in "common and intelligent action" to solve problems leading the south to chaos.

The wages and hours bill took a severe oral thrumping as speakers predicted passage of the bill would be one of the "most serious steps in the history of this country."

Fitzgerald Hall, president of the N. C. & St. L. railroad and president of the Southern States Industrial Council, which sponsored the conference at the Biltmore hotel, charged that "in the last ten years, government has not by legislative act solved a single important problem."

Business Men Blamed. Blame for conditions arising, he said in effect, can be laid equally at the feet of men in public office and business men "such as you attending this conference."

Approximately 200 business, financial and industrial leaders from throughout the south attended the dinner meeting which concluded the conference.

C. Shepperd, president of a Louisiana lumber company, and organizer of the Southern Pine Industry Committee, asserted that passage of the wages and hours bill would lead to government control of industry in the United States.

"Passage of this measure will be an opening wedge giving the federal government control of industry and labor in this country," he said.

Further Control. "Wages and hours cannot be fixed unless they are followed by similar methods of controlling prices and production. These four steps would socialize all industry in this country and would put freedom and liberty of the laborer in a bureau in Washington."

Asserting the "salvation of southern railroads is linked with the salvation of southern industry," Hall said both must "sink or swim together."

"One of the chief faults with businessmen in the south is that they are constantly advocating government administration for the other fellow—medicine they are not willing to take themselves," he said, deploring lack of fairness and information and tolerance on the part of businessmen.

He added that businessmen are not going to meet the situation by "leaving it to the gentlemen in public office, as fine as some of them are and as 'no account' as many of them are."

Knoxville Man Optimistic. On the other hand, E. J. McMillan, of Knoxville, Tenn., vice president of the industrial council, predicted he was "more optimistic."

"I don't believe the country is 'going to the dogs' common 'horse sense' will save us, but the hope lies in the businessmen and the south," he said.

"There are 'isms' prevalent here and the people are used to a good fight. Passage of this vicious wages and hours bill, would be a curse on this country, and now is no time for a defeatist attitude, even though the south may seem to be on the brink of disaster."

Hall and McMillan, led off by Shepherd, were unanimous in praise of Georgia's Senator Walter F. George and Representative Eugene Cox for their stands in Washington. Shepherd said that Senator George is "one of the real statesmen left in the senate."

State Revenue Commissioner T. Grady head signed an order yesterday suspending the right of Wolfe Silver, of Savannah, to engage in the sale of liquor for 30 days, but providing suspension may be served on probation after June 1 if Silver moves from his present location.

The commissioner's order said "beginning on June 1, the remainder of the suspension may be served on probation, conditioned on Wolfe Silver removing from his present location to a location not prohibited by the act authorizing the sale of alcoholic beverages and distilled spirits, sometime during the period of probation or before the 24th day of June, 1938, so as to not be within the restricted area with reference to churches."

Silver was ordered to present evidence to the revenue department before the expiration of the 30 days that he had complied with the order and removed his place of business.

COMMONS UPHOLDS SLOW AIR ARMING

British Sky Fleet Ready To Fight 'Tomorrow,' Premier Assures.

LONDON, May 25.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today fought off opposition attacks on Britain's gigantic but lagging air rearmament program to win a house of commons vote of 329 to 144.

The vote, on a labor motion to censure delays in the air program, came after Chamberlain told commons, the British air force was ready to fight "tomorrow" if necessary.

Sir Kingsley Wood, new British air minister, announced today leading but unnamed American aircraft industry representatives were coming to London "at once" for discussions started by the British air mission sent to the United States.

Defending the government's air program, Sir Kingsley also announced Viscount Nuffield, Britain's powerful automobile manufacturer, soon would start large-scale production of airplane bodies as a further spur to British aircraft output.

Answering opposition assertions that both Italy and Germany had more and better planes ready to fly now, Chamberlain said that Britain's air force, "if put to the test tomorrow," would prove to be one of the most formidable fighting machines in the world.

Another group will follow the Ufa trail to Hollywood, returning by way of old Mexico and New Orleans.

W. J. Andrews, of Toccoa, president of the Georgia Education Association; L. O. Rodgers, of Moultrie, and Purcell will accompany teachers as instructors. This summer the subject to be studied will be "Methods and Materials of Teaching Social Sciences" and the work will be done in seminars at the end of each day's journey. At the end of the tour, Dr. Wade said, teachers would write a paper a final examination.

"We believe teachers will be better able to teach history, geography and social science after such a trip," Dr. Wade said. By pooling their resources, such as food, lodging and transportation as a unit, Purcell said the teachers would make the 5,000 to 6,000 miles for a cost of about $50.

propagated by the Mexican government two months ago. Declaring conditions in his country were tranquil generally, the ambassador indicated the oil question was uppermost in his mind at present.

He did not disclose whether he had brought any definite formula for settling the controversy with the oil companies, but indicated he was ready to talk with their representatives when the companies decide to discuss a possible solution. The next move, he added, was up to the companies themselves.

The ambassador was expected to visit the State Department tomorrow to continue a series of discussions on the oil question, which was interrupted recently when he was called back to Mexico.

Dr. Castillo Najera conferred with Cardenas in Mexico City and later San Luis Potosi.

Ambassador Joseph Daniels conferred with Secretary Hull and Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles today after returning from his home in Raleigh, N. C. Hull said Daniels' visit dealt with routine departmental matters.

The oil companies previously had refused to discuss possible compensation for the expropriated properties, insisting their properties had been taken over illegally and demanding their return.

JAMAICA'S GOVERNOR
VOTED WIDE POWERS

KINSTON, Jamaica, May 25.—(AP)—The colonial legislature today voted Governor Sir Edward Denham power to declare a state of emergency in the situation growing out of Kingston's increasing labor trouble should warrant such action.

Except for one shooting incident, Kingston was quiet after last night's disorders in which the negro spectators were killed, but the wave of strikes which started Monday when street cleaners, tram motormen and other municipal employees walked out continued to spread.

"The gun made the loudest noise I ever heard, I guess. Right after it happened, I wished it hadn't happened. I saw it was sort of foolish. She started to gasp and moan and make funny sounds. I started to scream."

Young Douglas came home at this time. "I heard Donald crying, 'Lord, Lord, kill me! I never would have done it!'" said Douglas.

"I thought," said Donald, "she was still alive. I thought the best thing was to call the police and they'd get an ambulance."

He went downstairs and called the police.

save the life of the boy who had killed her. "This," she explained, "is my fault."

The witnesses, as they recited the tragedy, sat facing the dead-while, red-eyed faces of the lovers' parents, who sat side by side in the courtroom today, never moving their eyes except to bury their faces in tear-drenched handkerchiefs.

This extraordinary love story began, said Donald, August 3, 1936, when he first met her. "By October of that year we considered ourselves married." It went along ecstatically until March of this year. The two saw each other every day at each other's home and, said Mrs. Matthesen, her head thrown back from a rigid neck while tears rolled down her face, "we (the parents) talked about it, about how they were so friendly, and we laughed about it together." The lovers, it seemed, were so young.

During that time, said Donald, "we had some quarrels—nothing much," and Charlotte spoke romantically of death. Once she told her mother "whenever anything should happen to her she would rather kill herself. She would never suffer and would prefer death, I," added Mrs. Matthesen, "scolded her for saying that."

Then, on the Sunday before the Thursday of March 24, said Donald, "Charlotte came to me and said she was afraid she was going to become a mother and that she herself was trying to find a way to commit suicide, but that the way she thought of was a little too horrible. I told her that if she was going to commit suicide I'd do it, too, but there should be some other way. She told me that I shouldn't and that I could make something of myself. After I asked her for time to think things over she told me she'd wait."

The next night it was settled. The two had had a diet of "Romero and Juliet," "Aida," "Il Trovatore," the picture, "Mayerling"—all stories in which lovers die together—and he told her he would die with her. "She thought that was the most beautiful way to die and that if we died that way we'd always be together. She said the three of us (meaning their unborn child) would be together."

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Donald prepared himself for death. He gave his best friend his ring and a locket with a picture of Charlotte in it. He gave another his brief case and some books. "I won't need them any more," he said. He paid a dime he owed to still a third, patting him on the back, shaking his hand, saying "Auf Wiedersehen."

And Charlotte came to her bier—a cot in Donald's room—like a bride with a wedding with a spray of lilies of the valley for a corsage. He took his father's automatic and filled it with cartridges he had played with as a boy. "I used to use them as shells when I had tin soldiers."

"We lay down on the bed together. She said she wanted to shoot herself through the heart. I asked her how long it would take her to die. She said she would die instantly. I said maybe it would be better if she shot herself in the head, so she would die quicker. She said no, that would make a mess of her head and she didn't want that."

"I put my hand on her heart to help her find it. She pressed the trigger. The gun only clicked. Then she became very nervous and overwrought and she asked me to shoot her when she wasn't expecting it. I held the gun against her heart and she held her hand on the barrel."

"She was lying flat on her back and I was lying beside her. She began to talk of something not connected with what we had been talking about and I kept watching her for a couple of minutes. Then I shot her while she was in the middle of a sentence."

"The gun made the loudest noise I ever heard, I guess. Right after it happened, I wished it hadn't happened. I saw it was sort of foolish. She started to gasp and moan and make funny sounds. I started to scream."

Young Douglas came home at this time. "I heard Donald crying, 'Lord, Lord, kill me! I never would have done it!'" said Douglas.

1936. The grand jury's action came at the request of Andrews after Judge Rosser announced he would "have nothing to do with the immunity pledges made by the state and directed the case back to the grand jury."

"Grand Jury Matter."

"There is no use in burdening two courts with the same investigation," he said. "This is a grand jury matter. These men can go back to the grand jury and if they want to grant them immunity they can sit this matter and make their decision."

Ordinarily the two defendants would have been bound over to Judge Jesse M. Wood, in Fulton criminal court, since bribery is a misdemeanor.

Lewis F. Gordon, secretary of the March-April grand jury which granted Joyner and Stanley immunity, was put on the stand by Andrews.

"It was the idea of the grand jury to get information from men paying off policemen," Gordon said, "but first we had to have background and definite proof before we could even consent to put a stigma upon our police department."

"We granted immunity to Joyner and Stanley because they were the first to come in and take shelter under our promise of immunity. It was not the intent of the grand jury to go any further, however, in granting immunity to every officer who wished to admit his guilt."

Gordon said he did not remember the grand jury obtaining any testimony from Joyner and Stanley against other law enforcement officers.

Testimony they gave, he said, involved only the liquor men who had paid them bribes. After that the liquor men were summoned and warned to tell the truth or be indicted for perjury, he added.

Lawyers Reprimanded.

At the outset of the hearing, Judge Rosser announced he would "have no byplay or side comments between opposing counsel" during the trial, following an outburst between Finch and Reuben Garland, attorney for Joyner and Stanley.

Andrews, explaining how he obtained evidence from the two in opening the graft probe, said he was approached by several officers who wanted immunity.

"I needed two officers who were not too soiled but at the same time not too clean," he said.

"How did you know who was clean and who was dirty," Judge Rosser queried.

Andrews explained that investigation led him to believe Joyner and Stanley were "less at fault," for the conditions that had developed than other officers who had taken bribes. He said the grand jury had not had one voluntary witness until the offer of immunity was held out.

Andrew's Admission.

Andrews admitted he first talked to Joyner in Garland's office last fall at the conclusion of the lottery racket probe. He said at that time he promised not to prosecute him on basis of his own admissions but said he would on information he uncovered independently.

Garland later appeared before the grand jury and was assured Stanley and Joyner both would be given immunity to testify the truth, he said.

Stanley and David Townsend, who testified in the Burns trial he was "payoff" man for Burns in his liquor business, stood on their constitutional rights, refusing to answer Finch's questions on grounds they might incriminate themselves.

"This whole thing is silly," Judge Rosser declared. "If you've got immunity, you've got immunity. If the proper authorities granted immunity legally and rightfully that immunity ought to stand."

from Washington, D. C., he said he would be unable to leave for the festival.

Speculation over the plans of Governor Rivers settled down into patient waiting for his announcement, promised Saturday night. Political observers have him slated for campaigns for both the senate job of George and to return to the Governor's chair.

There has been no enlightenment from the Governor, who has stated that his decision is "a toss up."

At Pelham today second district congressional candidates will speak. Three men already are in the race and invited to appear on the festival program.

The incumbent E. E. Cox, may not make it. He, like Senator George, may be detained at Washington. But W. J. Crowe, of Sylvestor, who got into the campaign several weeks ago, and Judge Ira Carlisle, of Cairo, who announced some time later, are expected to be present.

Owen Opposition.

Only one other Georgia congressman, Emmett M. Owen, of Griffin, in the fourth district can match Cox' opposition. He must run against Phillips Moore, of Franklin, and Sidney Camp, of Newnan. Possibly others have their eye on his job.

Opposition has been reported for other congressmen but has not developed as far as the payment of entrance fees.

Georgia's gubernatorial aspirants generally are believed to be waiting to see which way Rivers will turn, while Hugh Howell campaigns and states "I'm going to be the next Governor of Georgia." Howell has paid his money, but the list of candidates discussed as likely to get into the same stream include:

Columbus Roberts, the commissioner of agriculture. Edgar Dunlap, of Gainesville. Charles Redwine, of Fayetteville.

Delacey Allen, of Albany. John Spivey, president of the state senate.

Already the paid political "cards" have begun appearing in the newspapers throughout the state, and with the primary September 14, all signs point to a warm summer.

Dr. Morgan Charges 'Misconduct' to TVA Chiefs

was unperturbed and he read quietly, using for emphasis nervous, jerky little gestures of his right hand.

"For me to state here what constitutes mismanagement, would be futile," he said, on that subject. "It would be just charge and counter-charge."

Asks Engineers' Probe.

For that reason, and because of the many technicalities involved, he proposed that a board of engineers determine what constituted mismanagement. He would, he said, point out specific instances of "mismanagement" which had cost the government "very large sums," when he has been given access to TVA's files.

Although both Harcourt Morgan and Lilienthal were the targets of his attack, he singled out Lilienthal for many of his more vehement assertions. He declared him guilty of:

"Various devices" to influence votes for public ownership of power facilities, contrary to public statements he was making at the time.

Falsifying Minutes. Falsifying the minutes of a meeting of the board of directors by deleting important matter.

Engaging a former private utility engineer as a consultant and then seeking to create an impression that Dr. Morgan was open to utility domination because he later did the same thing.

Against both Lilienthal and Dr. Harcourt A. Morgan, the former chairman of these activities: "Inaccurate and misrepresentative reports to the President, the congress, and the public."

"Mismanagement of the power program."

"Lack of candor in statements to the congress and the public concerning the power program."

"Improper and misleading accounting, reporting and publicity in reference to the 'yardstick'."

"Collusion, conspiracy and mismanagement in administration."

"Subservience to political and other special interests."

"I have not charged that any director of the TVA has taken bribes or stolen money," he said.

"Nor have I charged that any director has profited financially through any transaction of the authority. There are other and more subtle forms of failure to meet a public trust which are no less a menace to good government."

Lilienthal Unconcerned. Not far from the witness, and one of several hundred highly interested spectators, sat Lilienthal, seemingly unconcerned by his former chief's accusations. His turn before the committee, together with Dr. Harcourt Morgan, will come tomorrow and Friday.

Lilienthal, his broad high forehead deeply tanned, chuckled in amused fashion at some of Dr. Morgan's statements, infrequently jotted down notes, and for the most part sat placidly with arms folded or chin cupped in his hand. Dr. Harcourt Morgan was not present.

The "hidden subsidies" which Dr. Morgan mentioned in connection with the "yardstick" had enabled TVA, he said, to sell its power to consumers at a rate much below that which would have been possible otherwise. In explanation, he said that TVA sells power at wholesale to municipalities or co-operative associations by a contract which at the same time prescribes the rates at which it is to be resold to the consumer. These resale rates, he said, constitute the "yardstick."

"Hidden Subsidies." The "hidden subsidies" have been kept hidden by "misrepresentation," he said.

As a result of extensive publicity given the "yardstick" idea, he added, people all over the country had come to regard the rate charged in areas served with TVA power as the rate which private utilities should charge in their own communities.

Agents of the Electric Farm and Home Authority have gone from house to house in the TVA area promoting the use of electrical appliances, and the cost of their activities had not been added in, he said.

County agents had done the same thing, and TVA officials, members of congress and President Roosevelt himself, had all helped in promoting power consumption.

"If the yardstick communities had paid for this promotion, the resulting inflation of capital investment would have forced these projects greatly to overvalued and to be severely condemned on that account," he said.

Explains Utility Talks. The former chairman said Lilienthal made a "persistent attempt" to convince the public that Commonwealth & Southern "was arbitrarily refusing to sell its properties."

Through Wendell L. Willkie, its president, Commonwealth & Southern repeatedly offered to sell "any or all" of its properties, Morgan said.

He testified at length regarding negotiations with the company, which he said were carried on largely by Lilienthal. After a meeting of Willkie and the TVA board last January, the former chairman said, Lilienthal issued a news release which "gave a very false and inaccurate impression" of Willkie's position.

"The news release was an explicit falsification, the natural result of which was to deceive the public on a vital issue, to engender increased public bitterness toward the utilities and to substitute conflict and recrimination for open and aboveboard dealing with the facts," Morgan said, adding:

"Both the other directors were deliberately and consciously parties to this falsification."

Morgan asserted that in the Commonwealth & Southern negotiations, Lilienthal, at his own request, was made the sole negotiator for the TVA.

Lilienthal, Morgan said, "outlined to Mr. Willkie as above policy that the TVA was committed to a position of unrestricted competition (with private utilities) and announced decisions in line with this policy, when, in fact, no such policy ever had been adopted by the board."

"Mr. Lilienthal personally conducted the negotiations with Mr. Willkie. From certain incidents which had occurred in these and similar negotiations, I came to doubt whether Mr. Lilienthal's reports to the board were fully representative of what took place."

"Therefore, when the time came for very important negotiations with the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, near the end of January, 1937, I insisted that before such negotiations should be concluded there should be a meeting between officials of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation and the entire TVA board, so that each TVA director could learn about the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation's position directly from its representatives."

"To this request Mr. Lilienthal quickly agreed. It is my understanding he then went to Mr. Willkie personally and told him that such a meeting would not be necessary."

"Mr. Willkie, however, insisted on accepting the formal invitation."

Willkie's Denial. At the meeting, Morgan said, he asked Willkie whether a letter written by Lilienthal regarding the negotiations correctly represented the position of the company.

Willkie replied positively that it did not, the former TVA chairman continued.

Lilienthal's letter to Willkie, Morgan asserted, said Commonwealth & Southern had taken the position that it would not sell its properties unless the TVA would "give it a monopoly which would prevent the TVA from selling power to municipalities."

Willkie told the TVA board at the conference, the witness continued, that "this company would consider the sale of all, or any reasonable separable part" of its properties.

"The Commonwealth and Southern Corporation has repeatedly expressed its willingness to sell reasonable separate parts of its properties," the witness asserted.

"Mr. Lilienthal has repeatedly given the public a contrary impression."

Cut From Minutes. Morgan said Lilienthal deleted from TVA minutes, after they had been signed by the other two board members, statements, he had made "concerning the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation's willingness to sell its property."

"Again in May, 1936," the former TVA official added, "Mr. Willkie talked to Mr. Lilienthal and proposed to sell any, or all, the Commonwealth & Southern properties."

"Mr. Lilienthal took it upon himself to refuse Mr. Willkie's proposal without referring the matter to the board, although the policies Mr. Lilienthal referred to as a basis for such refusal were policies which never had been adopted or approved by the TVA board."

"This meeting occurred a short time before the filing of the 18 power company suits against the TVA. My understanding is that it was the final effort of the power companies to find a basis for settlement before instituting that suit."

"Thus it is not any single act of misrepresentation and deceit from which the TVA suffers, but a continuing habit of misrepresentation which is greatly in conflict with the public interest."

Skill in Dissimulation. "The majority of the TVA board in carrying on its public relations in such a way as to create definately misleading impressions has done so with such skill and strategy, that charges of direct and open falsehood generally can be refuted. In almost every instance there is a technical alibi or a plausible interpretation."

Morgan said a "representative illustration" of "misrepresentation" was a memorandum supplied to President Roosevelt in 1936 by Lilienthal. The memorandum, he said, contained an "explicitly false" statement. He also asserted another section of the document "serves only one purpose, to mislead the President."

At one point in his testimony, Morgan declared "contrary to the impression he (Lilienthal) gave to the people of Chattanooga, he persistently opposed the building of the Chickamauga dam."

"Dr. H. A. Morgan has met with executives of the fertilizer industry without disclosing such meetings to the board," he said at another point.

"After a series of such meetings, the policy of the TVA was changed fundamentally toward meeting the wishes of the fertilizer industry. These changes were not disclosed to the board, and were denied by Dr. H. A. Morgan."

NEW DWELLING BURNS IN ROME; DAMAGE $2,000. ROME, Ga., May 25.—Rome firemen battled two hours today as flames almost destroyed a new seven-room house on East Fourteenth street, owned by Miss Mabel Pierce.

The new dwelling, on which construction was nearing completion, was almost a total loss, according to Mack Hicks, attorney for Miss Pierce. He estimated the damage at a minimum of $2,000. Fire department officials said origin of the fire was not ascertained.

Helaine Goodpasture Wins Highest Rating at Sullins College in Virginia

By Sally Forth.

WHEN brunet and lovely Helaine Goodpasture graduated from North Fulton High school in 1936, she won the scholarship to Sullins College in Bristol, Va. On May 30, Helaine, who is the youngest in her class and will be the valedictorian, will graduate from Sullins with the highest rating in the college.

A diamond and platinum wrist watch is the graduation gift of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Goodpasture, who will attend the exercises when their brilliant daughter receives her diploma next Monday. She was born and reared in Atlanta, is fond of horseback riding and of playing badminton, and likes many other indoor and outdoor sports.

Last year, Helaine was president of the Georgia Club at Sullins and was a member of the spectacular Mardi Gras court. The honor of being president of the senior class and being chosen maid of honor to the queen at the May Day court next Saturday has been conferred upon Helaine, who appears to have walked away with every coveted award offered at the college.

HELEN BELL, whose marriage to Bill Leverson will be solemnized on June 14, is daily being made more aware of her coming marriage. Two of her friends, Doris Dunn and Katherine Fitzpatrick, initiated her to one of the well-known bridal traditions last Saturday at the luncheon at which they entertained in her honor.

Just at the close of the meal, a waiter appeared carrying a large tray which was piled high with presents. Just as the bride-elect began to open her packages, the other guests took tiny bags of rice from behind their backs and showered upon her.

Two of Helen's most prized presents she has received up to date are the beautiful crocheted bedspread which were given her by her future mother-in-law, Mrs. J. W. Leverson, and her cousin, Mrs. L. P. Longino, for whom she was named.

The groom-elect, incidentally, arrives the end of May and will attend some of the parties given before his marriage to Helen.

WHEN Howard See, who is president of the Atlanta Rotary Club, leaves on June 13 to attend the Rotary convention in San Francisco, Cal., he will be accompanied by his attractive daughter, Elizabeth.

Mrs. Haverty Honors June Bride-Elect

Among the social affairs which featured the calendar yesterday was the beautifully appointed luncheon at which Mrs. Joe Haverty entertained in compliment to her niece, Miss Clare Haverty, whose marriage to Frank Ridley Jr. will be an important event of June 23. The party was held at the Piedmont Driving Club and assembled the members of Miss Haverty's wedding personnel.

The lace-covered table, placed on the terrace of the club, was graced in the center with an attractive arrangement of summer garden flowers displaying all the tints of the rainbow. The place cards featured a bridal design and other details of decoration carried out the bridal motif.

Covers were placed for the bride-elect and Misses Emily Smith, Elkin Goddard, Sarah Smith, Betty Haverty, Emma Middlebrooks, Mesdames Edward D. Smith Jr., David N. McCullough, Augustus H. Sterne, Randolph Apperson Hearst, Rufus M. Darby, Clarence Haverty, Frank M. Ridley Sr., and the hostess.

Mrs. P. C. McDuffie will be hostess Tuesday at a buffet luncheon at her home on Cherokee road, complimenting Miss Haverty and two other popular brides-elect, Miss Deas Smith and Miss Emily Smith.

Both Miss Haverty and her fiancé will be the buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Beverly DuBoise will be hosts Wednesday evening, June 1, at their home on Peachtree road.

Mrs. C. T. Pottinger Is Re-elected Head of Young Matrons' Circle

MRS. CHARLES T. POTTINGER.

Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger was re-elected president of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School, which she has been holding yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club. Mrs. Pottinger has been the capable head of this prominent organization for the past term and has led the circle through a successful series of endeavors.

In accepting the nomination for her re-election, Mrs. Pottinger, who was one of the founders of the circle ten years ago, stated that her interest in Tallulah, always active since the circle's beginning, had grown and ripened with the years. She cited the loyalty and co-operation of the membership and compared the "Strength of the Mountains," the subject of the splendid address which Preston Arkwright made to the school's graduating class last week, with the strength of the circle.

"In each of the various undertakings," Mrs. Pottinger stated, "you have demonstrated what organized effort can accomplish."

Other officers presented by the nominating committee and unanimously elected by the circle are Mesdames Preston S. Arkwright, who continues as honorary president for life; Edward G. Hitt, Wiley Ballard and Eugene A. Cronheim, vice presidents; George Griffin Jr., recording secretary; Edgar Pincher, corresponding secretary; Blair Foster, treasurer; Gus Ashcraft, Harris Robinson, William D. Owens, Keith Quarterman, William C. Warren, James P. Hanner, H. W. Beers Jr. and Crawford Barnett, directors.

Mrs. Lawrence Willet, chairman, made the report of the nominating committee.

The final financial report for the past year showed a total raised of over $18,450, resulting from dues, earnings and scholarships received during the past term.

The Young Matrons' Circle has given to the school so far this year $5,000. This includes over $1,100 made on the recent horse show, dance and horse show concessions; $2,000 on the Bermuda trip alone.

a feature of the bridge party in November; $700 on the bridge party and over $700 on a style show. These earnings, plus dues reported by the treasurer, Mrs. Blair Foster, reached a total of $8,000. Scholarships amounted to $10,450.

Mrs. Harrington Honored. Of the amount totaled under earnings and dues, $2,000 was appropriated and invested by the vote of the circle and the trustees of Tallulah to establish the Amelie Harrington perpetual scholarship. This action was received with enthusiastic applause by the group assembled Wednesday.

Special tenth anniversary year projects and their chairmen, who were introduced at the meeting, were the Bermuda trip bridge party in November, Mrs. H. W. Beers Sr., chairman; the horse show, held in May, Mesdames Irving Schweppe, Eugene Harrington and Marion Candler, chairmen, and the style projects, also in May, Mrs. Rufus Darby, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Robert H. Jones III and Mrs. Philip L'Engle.

The president, Mrs. Pottinger, reported that there were 20 committees, of which the circle had practically all entertained their groups at tenth anniversary year conference teas.

A report was given by the 20 committee chairmen showing work completed and commercial gifts contributed. These two groups, headed by Mrs. William Warren and Mrs. William Owens and Mrs. Harris Robinson and Mrs. Robert L. Towles, provided personal gifts for each of the 300 children and the school at Christmas time and supplied fruit, candies and numerous other things for the school.

Furniture Requested. Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell, chairman of the equipment committee, 169 Peachtree circle, Hemlock 4640, announced that a truck will be needed for the June 1 with gifts of furniture. Mrs. Mitchell requests that members and other friends who have articles to send will telephone her promptly so that the truck can call for such gifts.

In celebration of the tenth anniversary year of the circle, the membership was complimented at a party at the Piedmont Driving Club in March, at which Miss Ruth St. Denis was presented in a lecture-dance recital.

The circle voted to continue the Tallulah, or tenth anniversary celebration of the Young Matrons' group, through the present year.

Mrs. John K. Otley commented on the number of first-year officers who are still active in the membership of the circle and introduced a group of the 1927-1928 officers who were present.

Those introduced were Mesdames Preston S. Arkwright, honorary president; Lawrence Willet, first president of the group; Stuart Witham and Eugene Harrington, vice presidents; James J. Ragan, recording secretary; David C. Black, corresponding secretary; Rembert Marshall, treasurer; George W. McCarty Jr., Glenville Giddings, Beverly DuBoise, Howard McCall Jr. and Bolling Jones Jr., directors; Howard McCall, Samuel M. Inman, Price Gilbert, Morris Brandon and William D. Ellis, advisory board, and Charles T. Pottinger, first chairman of scholarships.

Also introduced at the meeting were Miss Martha Burnett, president, and members of the Girls' Circle for the Tallulah Falls School. Miss Burnett announced that the Girls' Circle, through Miss Nancy Keeler, fourth vice president, will sponsor a dance recital on Saturday at North Fulton High school. Others introduced were Misses Ann Pappenheimer, president, and member of the North Fulton Junior Circle; Miss Mary Catherine Reeves, president, and members of the Washington Seminary Junior Circle; Mrs. John E. Drewry, of Athens, and members of the Athens Tallulah Falls Circle, and Mrs. Albert M. Hill, of Greenville, recently elected president of the G. F. W. C.

Following the completion of the business session, members were served tea on the terrace.

After a Few Days' Diet, You're Ready To Snatch Food From Others

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Strange slips occur even in the best of regulated households. As we were about to go into dinner last night, we discovered that when I had seated the table, I had not included Anne and Johnny in our dinner list! After all our guests had arrived, I had to have two places added and shuffle all my seating cards around. I had the feeling that I would probably find members of the same family sitting next to each other, for we had not only husbands and wives, but also brothers and sisters. However, I apparently made no slips and we filed into dinner about 10 minutes late.

After dinner we sat and talked a little and then our guests for the dances, which we give each year for the members of the newspaper fraternity, began to arrive. Mr. Ruby Newman's orchestra played for us and the music was excellent. Miss Vandy Cape, Miss Chaney and Mr. Fox proved to be much appreciated interludes in the dancing. I always feel happier when I have some members of my own family to help watch any party and Johnny and my brother, Hall, were very useful last night.

Members of the cabinet drifted in and out. Everyone seemed to have a good time, in spite of the early part of the evening which made going out doors exceedingly dampish.

The President went upstairs about 11:30. I have a theory that parties should end when everybody is still apparently having a good time, so, at 1:30, "Good Night, Ladies" was played and everyone bade me good night.

Showers again all day today and another postponement of the veterans' garden party. I think the weatherman has decided I need to learn how to adjust myself to constant changes. I hope that by tomorrow he will think I have had enough discipline, for I really would like to have this party before June.

Because of various delays I was very late this morning for a meeting in the Bureau of Education at the Department of the Interior. Assistant Secretary Oscar Chapman presided with Dr. Studebaker beside him. I was very much interested in the replies made by the heads of the various resident institutions for handicapped children in different states when they were asked what subjects they felt should come up for discussion in addition to those listed on the agenda. I gathered the impression that one of the things they all desired was more personal interest from the residents of their communities and a better understanding of the work which they are trying to accomplish.

If communities obtained more knowledge, more interest in the education of handicapped and delinquent children would be assured in the state legislature and the entire population. The proposition is the same as the individual's duty to understand the agencies for public service in his community so that he may perform the responsibilities of citizenship.

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN

For many years certain of the nation's outstanding teams-of-four have based their play upon the prearranged conclusion that there is a tendency for Aces to lay at the left of Kings... Kings on the left of Queens... Queens on the left of the Jacks. Many successful rubber bridge players follow the same notion, or at least when in doubt take advantage of this supposed tendency.

A perfect shuffle is expected to separate every card from the cards immediately above and below it, but in the excitement of contract, this perfection is seldom realized.

When a King is lost to an Ace, the Ace is dropped on top of the King. But when the trick is taken in and turned, the King is on top of the Ace. The same is true when Queens are won with Kings... Jacks are won with Queens.

At the close of the deal all tricks are gathered and the pack is hurriedly shuffled. The chances are the lower-ranking of the two cards is still on top and will be dealt first... the higher-ranking card going to the player on its left. It has therefore been concluded that whenever the Ace is originally to the left of the King and captures it, then, within the limits of error that an imperfect shuffle is expected to render, it will still be on the left on the following deal. Similarly the conclusion effects the deal of Kings and Queens, Queens and Jacks, and other pairs.

Should it be proven true that contract bridge is governed by a certain mathematical curve, known as the "curve of error," bridge players should lose no time in adopting a slogan to "look ahead in bidding" but "look backward in the play," particularly when trying to determine the probable location of outstanding threatening high cards.

GREEN PLOVERS.
The green plover is a very inquisitive bird which likes to watch other birds building their nests. The German word for green plover is kibitz. It is assumed that the word "kibitzer" virtually means "plover" and is a German word referring to any inquisitive bird. So now kibitzers know what they really are.

A PRACTICAL HOUSE DRESS, GAY WITH RICCAC.

Straight, simple, good looking, this new house dress is exactly the kind that large women like. You can't imagine anything more comfortable to work round the house in, and it's so quick and easy to tub and press. Riccacs braid at the becoming v-neckline and short, slashed sleeves give it a bright morning touch.

There's a lot of fashion chat about calico right now, and calico with a small, red, scattered print, with red riccacs and red bows, would be a very pretty choice for 1512-B. Seersucker, broadcloth and percale are also well-adapted to this design. It's the kind you'll want to use over and over, because the style is so satisfactory and the pattern so easy to make—it's a diagram dress, that practically sews itself, in just a few hours.

Your Figure, Madame!

GUARD AGAINST HUNGER PANGS ON A REDUCING DIET.

Civilization is only as old as the last square meal and if you don't believe you could revert to the primitive, go on a rigorous diet for a few days. You will be ready to snatch food right off anybody's plate!

Of course, there are no statistics on the subject, but probably the lightest sentences imposed on cases of stealing because of hunger are those passed by judges who have tried a reducing diet. Only a person who has been through the experience can sympathize with hunger pangs.

The self-restraint exercised by the greatly overweight person on a reducing diet is almost beyond belief, and I have the utmost respect for the reducer who carries out her diet. There is nothing that demands more in will power.

Your reducing program is more likely to succeed, however, if you do not put your will power to too great a test. It is a smart idea to make your diet as satisfying as possible, so that it is not too hard to follow.

In making up the low calorie menus, be sure that you include some of the satiating foods, some crunchy foods which require chewing, and some that are space fillers. Among the foods with a high satiety value are the proteins. Eggs, cheese, lean meat and milk give substance to your reducing diet, and every reducing menu should contain a normal amount of these foods.

The crunchy foods and those which require considerable chewing are invaluable in the low calorie diet. Without adding any appreciable number of calories, they still create the impression of a great deal of food. In this list are celery, apples or crunchy biscuits.

YOU CAN EASILY TAKE SHOTS LIKE THIS!

So alive is this prize-winning snapshot you can almost hear the pussy purr. It was taken with ordinary equipment, a dash of knowing how.

The camera was placed on the floor about eight feet from the subjects. Highly sensitive film was used. The only light was the sun shining through the window. The lens aperture was f.16, the shutter speed 1-25 second.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
Your answers to other people's problems have been so helpful that we thought perhaps you could help us solve ours. Can anything be done with a stingy person, or is the condition so chronic that there is no hope for recovery? In our crowd of young married people there is one couple who are thus afflicted. Mary and John, as I shall call them, are not just thrifty, but stingy to the point of being miserly. They not only make themselves miserable over the worry of a few pennies, but their associates as well.

In the four years our club has been organized, this couple have not entertained once. Oh, they always have an excuse: the baby is too young, or one of the twins is ill, but they are ever eager to go to the parties and dances given by any of the others of us. They are as financially able, or more so, than anyone in the crowd. We like these people, but to the extent that we should entertain them forever, without any return invitations. We thought perhaps you could suggest some way in which we might suggest subtly, that we expect them to do their share of party giving.

ELsie.

ANSWER:
Friend, subtle suggestions go over with people of delicate sensibilities, but only huck shot will pierce the hides of those as tough as you describe your associates. Right now, make up your mind to take them as is, or to leave them out of your parties. If they are so charming that you are willing to go on and on entertaining them without receiving any invitations from them that's one thing. If they are not, then drop them off the list.

In almost every social group there's one short shirt who won't do his part. Either he plays a cracking good game of cards, or he's a fine story teller, or he amuses with his wit, or he smooths things out with his polished manners. Perhaps he figures that he pays his way with his parlor tricks; at any rate he doesn't pay with return invitations and while those that continue to invite him feel contemptuous of him, they go on entertaining him, for some inexplicable reason.

Yet it is remarkable to hear of a couple in such perfect accord in the matter of sponging on friends year in and year out; and it's fortunate that they have the same point of view. If all their friends desert them they will still be happy counting their pennies and seeing their savings swell, this being the chief end and aim of life.

Isn't miserliness one of the most revolting of vices? It makes people forget or ignore obligations, social, civic and moral. For the pleasure of seeing their pile grow they will sacrifice the good opinion of every friend they have and of course this spells death to pride and self-respect. Given time miserliness will deaden all fine sensibilities.

Subtle suggestion to a couple of misers? Why, you might as well try to impress a rhinoceros by zipping a sling shot at him, a mile away.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Hot Weather Tips

How to keep cool—and look fresh during the hot summer months! Gloria Dickson, Warner Brothers starlet, has some useful ideas on the subject. A bath towel, wrung out in cold water and applied several times a day to the base of her neck, gives Gloria quite a new lease on life. Miss Dickson finds that changing her make-up frequently is a great help in keeping heat at arm's length. If you follow her example by using a cream powder base and paste rouge, you can dip a piece of cotton in cold water and dab it over your face. This will remove any oily secretion, and power it with a complete cleansing. When ever Gloria feels ultra hot and puffy, she dips a piece of cotton in eau de cologne and works it around her hairline. This is particularly refreshing when patted above the temples. Miss Dickson makes a practice of using only light perfumes during the summer months—particularly floral odors. Heavy per-

KNOW YOUR VITAMINS!

Good Tasting Yeast Tablet Promotes Vital Nutrition

Many people are confused by claims regarding vitamins and their importance in preventing disease. For this reason, you should know these facts about this vital subject: Three vitamins—B, O and D—are lacking in many refined foods. Deficiency of Vitamin B may mean poor digestion, constipation, even nervous disorders. Without Vitamin O, skin, hair and nails fail to get proper nutrition. Too little Vitamin D weakens the structure of teeth and bones, decreases intestinal muscle tone and increases the tendency to infection. Yeast is the richest natural source of Vitamin B and O. The tradition of the yeast in Ray-D Tablets adds the important Vitamin D—an amount equal to 100 percent of ordinary cod liver oil in each tablet. Many doctors recognize this as a most economical source of these 3 vitamins. . . a food supplement to combat low vitality due to lack of Vitamins B, O and D. Be sure you get the IRRADIATED YEAST TABLETS. At leading drug stores everywhere. (Ad.)

SOUTHERN IDEALS LIVE, BISHOP SAYS

Decell Pleads Against Any Ill Will Linger in Methodist Ranks.

By LUKE GREENE.

Methodist unification will do no violence to southern ideals nor will it jeopardize the property interests of members of the church within the southeastern jurisdiction, Bishop J. L. Decell, of Birmingham, Ala., said yesterday while attending sessions of the Atlanta district conference at the First Methodist church.

Bishop Decell, who was recently elected to preside over Georgia and Alabama Methodists at the general conference in Birmingham, was principal speaker at yesterday's meeting.

The approximately 200 delegates who attended the district conference elected 41 representatives and 10 alternates to the annual meeting of the North Georgia Conference in November.

Giving his views of unification in an interview, Bishop Decell said "it is natural that within such a large body of Methodists there would be those who did not prefer adoption of the plan of union."

"Love All Our People."

"However," he continued, "as bishop in charge of these two great states, I call upon both laity and ministry to co-operate in consummating the plan of union without injury to the sacred cause in which we are all interested."

The bishop said it would be an unwarranted presumption to assume that any minister would have less consideration of any layman because of his former attitude on union.

"Let no one be so unwise as to think, and certainly not so impatient as to say, that it doesn't matter if some people leave our church," he urged. "We love all of our people and earnestly desire that we shall remain together in this great jurisdiction."

He paid tribute to Bishop Warren A. Candler and Bishop W. N. Ainsworth as "two of Georgia's noblest sons, wise leaders who have contributed largely to all phases of progress in the Kingdom of God."

"Under the inspiration of the achievements of these and other great leaders given to the world through Georgia Methodism, I call upon both laity and ministry for this greater day which has come to the world through a reunited American Methodism," he said.

Bishop Decell said he was of the opinion that the greater Methodist movement would be found in that of Georgia and Alabama. He added there are more Methodists in these two states than in any other similar territory in the world.

In his address to the Atlanta Methodist group, Bishop Decell urged members of the church to develop the power that is needed to meet the problems and issues of the day.

"The tragedies of the world and the selfishness and sin that prevail in individuals and groups demand that the church has a grasp of power adequate to cope with the crisis and win a victory for good and the better life for mankind," he declared.

Dr. F. W. Price, a missionary from Nanking, China, said the tragedy of war is making the Chinese more sympathetic to the Christian religion, and he appealed in behalf of the Red Cross for funds to relieve suffering in the war-stricken country.

Wesleyan Situation Improves. Dr. W. H. LaPrade, a member of the board of trustees of Wesleyan College, explained that a temporary settlement has been made of the financial difficulties of the college.

Other speakers included Dr. Lester Rumble, Jere Wells, Dr.

$15 MONTHLY SOUGHT FOR OLD AGE BENEFITS

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP) Senators Bilbo, Democrat, Mississippi, and Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, sought today to force a senate vote on equalization of federal old age benefits.

In an amendment to the relief appropriation bill, they proposed a regular $15 monthly payment to all clients under the social security act's needy aged provision, regardless of the state contribution. The board now matches the state allowance up to $15.

ONE SHOE OFF

By Joseph McCord.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Clayton Odell, a stranger in Norwood, is taking a sun bath in a canoe on a near-by lake when the craft is jolted violently. A second later a halting cap rises over the side of the canoe, and a girl, short of breath, apologizes for the intrusion. After Clayton asks her to climb aboard she says she was trying to improve her distance, but her endurance was not equal to her ambitions. The canoe was her only refuge. Responding to a question from Clayton, the girl tells him her name is Hilary Layne and that she works in the office of the hostelry owner by Romulus Wardlaw, whom she describes as "sort of shriveled up and grouchy." She complains about the poor pay all the employees receive. Clayton gives her his name, but otherwise does not identify himself. He brings her ashore. Hilary arrives home, which she shares with her mother, a brother, Griffith, and a sister, Muriel, whose childhood sweetheart, an aviator, was killed in an accident. Her mother tells Hilary that Wardlaw's nephew, named Odell, had come to Norwood to help run the mill. Seeing Clayton in the office on Monday, Hilary, painfully embarrassed, greets him with a cold stare. Four weeks later he invites her to go canoeing. She hesitates until Clayton says he wants to explain a new job he has for her—assisting him in installing a cost-accounting system. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IX.

Shadows across the water began to lengthen. There was another ordeal waiting back in Norwood. The trip from the boat-house in Clay's car. He had suggested it as a matter of course, or merely a matter of necessity caused by her broken heel. It probably never would occur to him that it would herald to all Norwood that Larry Layne had been out with her boss. That delicious morsel would be rolled around by many a tongue.

"I expect we'd better be starting back," Larry suggested hesitatingly.

"I suppose so," was the resigned answer. "It's one of those things. Too bad we didn't think to bring our supper."

"Oh, I really must get home," Larry said hastily, fearful that some new plan might be hatched.

"Okay. We'll start. But we'll have to have that paddling lesson, just the same. I won't let you try now... your dress looks too nice and fresh to muss up."

He had little to say during the trip back, and Larry was secretly glad. As the familiar shore line of the town neared, she was more and more obsessed with a sense of frustration. It occurred to her that she might ask Clay to drop her at the shoe repair shop, use that as an excuse to walk home and not keep him waiting. But that meant a main street halt and on a Saturday evening, in addition to being rather a transparent ruse. It would be better to direct him to the Layne house by a more-or-less indirect route, reserve the exciting spectacle for the immediate neighbors.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Layne was on the front porch chatting with a friend on the next-door veranda. In her eagerness to alight from the roadster, Larry threw open its door and sprang out the instant a halt was made, completely forgetting her heelless pump until she found herself in an undignified heap. She scrambled to her feet but, before she could take more than one or two limping steps, Clay was at her side steadying her, and Mrs. Layne's stout form was hurrying from the porch.

"Larry, my dear! Have you been hurt? What is the matter?"

"Nothing, Mums. I'm all right... lost a heel, is all." She was almost forced to explain that much through her clenched teeth to keep her voice from rising to an hysterical pitch. "Oh, Mums... This is Mr. Odell from the office. My mother, Mr. Odell."

"I am very glad to make your acquaintance, Mrs. Layne," he offered smilingly, extending his free right hand. "Your daughter seemed to be having some difficulty navigating. I prevailed upon her to let me give her a lift home. May I help you as far as the porch, Miss Layne?"

"Oh, I can make it all right... I'll lean on Mums," Hilary laughed, flashing him a grateful look. It was sweet of Mr. Odell to make the explanation as he did, without going into detail. Not that it made the slightest difference. But that Mrs. Robertson was straining her eyes and ears under the guise of a friendly concern and, to make matters more involved, Muriel was hurrying out the front door and down the porch steps. Alarm in her gentle voice.

"Oh... Has Larry had an accident?"

The same silly explanation to make. Another introduction. From the corner of her eye, Larry saw Griffith standing at the front door. But some providential appreciation of fitness of things kept him where he was.

"That was very kind of you to bring Hilary home," Mrs. Layne was telling Clay in her placid fashion. "She has told us so much about you. Won't you come up and sit on the porch with us?"

"Thank you very much, Mrs. Layne, but I really must be running along home," smiled the dependable Clay. "I shall be glad to remember your invitation another time. And I'm very glad for the opportunity of meeting both of you ladies. Good evening."

His eyes rested last upon Larry's face with a special little smile that indicated... something. She slipped her arm into her mother's and started for the porch limping painfully.

"If Mrs. Robertson asks if I've hurt myself, I'll scream," she murmured. "You can tell her I got this way from working for Mr. Wardlaw so long."

"Larry, don't be absurd."

"Isn't everything?"

Before Mrs. Layne could frame a suitable reproof, Mrs. Robertson's interested question came floating across intervening spaces. Muriel who had an instinctive dread of anything approaching an unpleasantness, took it upon herself to linger and make explanation.

Larry sank weakly into the nearest chair inside the front door and kicked off both offending white pumps. She glared wearily at young Griffith who stood facing her, feet wide apart with an air of masculine authority.

"So!" he began, with a commiserating shake of his curly head. "Trying to get your hooks into the

MYSTERY OF THE AMAZON.

IV—A Rescue Party.

Picking up the trail of Colonel Fawcett and his two companions, five white men made their way through the Mato Grosso. They were led by George M. Dyott, an old-time Amazon explorer. With him were two photographers and two wireless telegraph experts.

through words which one of Dyott's guides helped to translate.

"Yes," said the chief, "we saw the white men. They visited us, and we guided them eastward to another Fawcett camp."

"Will you take us that way?" asked Dyott.

"No! That is where the Suyas live! They come up to people and hit them on the back of their heads!"

With the help of presents, however, Dyott persuaded the chief and some of his warriors to go with them for a short distance. The chief said Fawcett must have been killed by the Suyas, or else must have died from hunger or thirst. A place was pointed out where Fawcett built his "last campfire," and a picture was taken of Sam Martin, one of the rescue party, looking at the marks of the fire.

Dyott noticed that the chief's wife wore a metal tag from Fawcett's baggage, also that a box which had belonged to Fawcett was in the chief's hut. Had these things been given as presents, or had they been taken from the colonel after the Indians had slain him?

The question could not be answered, but one of a guide said he had heard a group of Anauqua Indians plotting to kill Dyott. If there was such a plot, it was not carried out. The whites quickly said good-bye, and went on with their journey.

At last they reached the point from which Fawcett sent his last message to the outside world. It was near the headwaters of the Xingu river, which is part of the Amazon system.

Going forward to the river, the Dyott party unpacked four canvas boats and opened them up. With the help of Indians who had joined the whites, they made several canoes from the bark of trees.

Among the Indians was one who said he had guided Fawcett for a time. He said the colonel had gone among the Anauqua Indians, some distance down the Xingu.

Reaching an Anauqua village, Dyott met the chief, who was named Aloque. They spoke together partly by signs, partly

Bill Beckman Shuts Out Chicks, 1-0, in One-Hit Masterpiece

Yates Captures Two Matches, 3-2 and 5-4, To Gain Fourth Round

TROON, Scotland, May 25.—(By Cable.)—They said Frank Pennink, typical Oxford man, had no nerves. Our Charlie Yates today gave him a complete set. A 20-foot putt for a two at No. 5

HENRY COTTON.

12th and was twice stymied to drop the 14th, but on the 15th he dropped a 30-footer for a birdie and exploded out of the sand and canned a 12-foot putt at the 16th to tie the hole and win the match.

While he hasn't needed them since the Fischer match, Yates was still wearing those old red flannels loaned him by Bobby Jones. He has become sort of attached to them, and I do not mean that to sound as if the heat plus the fact they haven't been laundered has anything to do with it.

There were two great shocks for the English golf public today. One was Yates' defeat of Pennink and the other was Johnny Goodman's smashing 6-and-5 victory over the great Albert W. Briscoe, Irish internationalist.

LONG WAY TO TIPPERARY.

It is, as the song insists, a long way to Tipperary. But it is no longer than the journey from the first to the fifth round in the British amateur.

Charlie Yates went out this afternoon and routed the Britisher, Stanley Morrison, 5 and 4, to enter the fourth round of 32. Yates' advantage on the first nine won for him as he and Morrison matched cards on the first five holes of the incoming round.

There are now four Americans left, two of them being youngsters from the deep south. Freddie Haas, the New Orleans boy who is giving L. S. U. a good deal of international

FRED HAAS WINS BUT VET OUMET FALLS AT TROON

Atlantan Putts Superbly; John Goodman and Kocsis Advance.

By SCOTTY RESTON.

TROON, Scotland, May 25.—(AP) Paced by Charlie Yates and Fred Haas Jr., each of whom turned in two victories, four members of the United States Walker cup team marched into the fourth round of the British amateur golf championship.

In order to get an idea of just how tough the four surviving Americans are one must look at their cards. Yates, the man who made putting look easy, was three under 4's for the 30 holes it took him to eliminate Pennink and Morrison. Kocsis was two under par for the 15 holes he needed to thump Montgomery. Goodman was even par against Briscoe, and Haas shot even par for both his matches.

Yates gets tougher around the greens every day. It has got so now that he doesn't even line up those long ones. He just swings and in they go.

In the field, in addition to the Americans and Sandy Somerville, the Canadian who won the American title in 1932, there are two former champions, Cyril Tolley, who won in 1920 and 1929, and Hector Thomson, the Scot, who won two years ago. It looks like Haas may get a chance at Thomson tomorrow afternoon.

OUMET, SMITH BEATEN.

In a day of busy competition which reduced the list of survivors to 32, Yates, Haas, Johnny Goodman, the American champion, and Charles Kocsis continued unbeaten, but Team Captain Francis Oumet, the man Scotland really wanted to see win, and Reynolds Smith, of Dallas, were eliminated.

Besides the American casualties, the day's play also brought the elimination of defending champion Robert Sweeney, American-born resident of London, and the Scottish favorite and British Walker cup player, Gordon Peters.

While Goodman, with a 6 and 5 defeat of Albert W. Briscoe, of Ireland, and Kocsis, who turned back British John S. Montgomery, 4 and 2, survived, one or the other goes out tomorrow morning, when they meet a fourth-round match.

WHIPS PENNINK.

Yates, extra-hole winner over Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati, yesterday, played impressive golf today as he first whipped Pennink, the English amateur champion, and then disposed of Stanley P. Morrison, of Britain, 5 and 4. Haas, whose first-round form drew the approval of Open Champion Henry Cotton, turned back Dr. J. D. MacCormack, 7 and 5, in the second round, and beat Derek A. Drayson, 4 and 3, this afternoon.

Oumet, one of with two to play against Cecil Ewing, former British Walker cupper from County Sligo, Ireland, and followed by an idolatrous Scottish gallery of 1,500, faltered on the last two holes and lost them both.

"I just didn't have it at the end," said Oumet. "Sometimes the spir-

Slugger Joins Atlanta, Plays First in Debut

Cecil (Dynamite) Dunn, the home run hitter acquired by Atlanta from Toledo, joined the Crackers here yesterday and at once was inserted into the lineup by Manager Richards. Dunn, who hit 80 homers during the past two seasons, is ordinarily an outfielder, but played first yesterday, with Jack Bolling nursing a bad thumb. Dynamite appeared to be quite at home around the initial sack. The big fellow, whose bat may give the Crackers the punch they need to win the flag, broke into the Southern yesterday in one of the greatest games ever played in this league.

New Cracker Shows Power in Batting Practice; Airtight Game Tough on All.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

While Bill Beckman's brilliant one-hit flinging performance holds the headlines of yesterday's Cracker-Chick game, nevertheless, Cecil (Dynamite) Dunn, the new slugger, made his debut.

It was not a startling start. Dunn didn't get a hit. But there were seven other Crackers and nine Chicks in the same boat—and couldn't be blamed for it. Good pitching has a habit of being tough on hitters.

Hill and Mauldin collected the Crackers' two while Pearson got all of the Chicks' one. Frank Werk-Verkerka failed as a pinch-hitter to make it nine enemies with nary a single.

Dunn grounded out to Blakeney at short on his first attempt, repeated the act to Pearson at third on his second try and was called out on strikes on his final appearance.

Howard added that Seabiscuit's weak knees, which caused the cancellation of the $100,000 match race with War Admiral at Belmont park on Memorial Day, would give the horse no trouble on the comparatively soft Suffolk Downs track.

Adams announced that War Admiral, the unbeaten three-year-old champion of 1937, would definitely be on hand for the one mile and one-eighth handicap which Seabiscuit won handsily in 1937 from the classiest field in training at the time.

Bobby Jones Golfers Will Gather Tonight

A mass meeting of Bobby Jones municipal golfers will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the clubhouse. It's the first meeting of the Bobby Jones Municipal Golf Association, since its organization last week.

Ed Heusser Gives Atlanta Only Two Hits; Russ Peters Drives In Lone Run.

By JACK TROY.

If Bill Beckman had forgotten to duck he might easily today be in baseball's hall of fame. Beckman fashioned a mound masterpiece as the Crackers defeated the Chicks, 1 to 0, in the closing game of the series. It gave Atlanta the series, three games to one, and sent them into second place.

Beckman allowed only one hit, and only two Chicks got as far as second.

The one hit was secured by Pearson in the seventh. He knocked through the box. Beckman ducked it and it went on past Mauldin on second for a single.

A lot of fellows have gotten in trouble for forgetting to duck, but Beckman is one of the few who lost anything because he did.

It was the greatest game of the Southern league season. Ed Heusser, on the mound for the Chicks, gave up only two hits.

But one of them was a triple against the signs by Johnny Hill in the fifth and Hill came home after the catch of Peters' fly to deep center.

That was the ball game. A wild throw by Hill allowed Reese to get to second in the second and Blakeney, drawing a walk, stole second in the third.

That represented the Chicks' chief scoring threats. The Crackers got only one other man as far as second. Mauldin singled in the sixth and went on to second when

York, Greenberg Hit 2 Homers Each as Tigers Take Yanks, 7-3

INDIANS BOOST LEAD, BUMPING RED SOX, 6 TO 4

White Sox Rally To Defeat Lowly Athletics, 7 to 4.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Those home-run twins, Rudy York and Hank Greenberg, hit a pair of four-baggers apiece yesterday to account for all the runs as the Tigers trampled the New York Yankees 7 to 3.

It was the Yanks' third straight setback, the first time this season the world champions had been humiliated in that fashion.

York hit his first in the third with two mates aboard, and was followed by Greenberg's first poke. Rudy's second came with one on in the fifth, and again Greenberg followed with a round-tripper. All the scoring came off Rookie Joe Begg, the Yankee starter.

Cleveland's league-leading Indians lengthened their lead a full game over Boston and New York, their nearest rivals, with a 6-4 victory over the second-place Red Sox.

Sixth and seventh inning homers by Gee Walker, Rip Radcliff and Mike Kreevich, driving in all but one of their runs, enabled the Chicago White Sox to erase an early 4-0 disadvantage and defeat the Athletics, 7 to 4, in the opening game of their series.

Harold Clift singled, went to second on a sacrifice, to third on a wild pitch and scored on an out-field fly to give the St. Louis Browns a 13-inning victory over the Washington Senators, 4 to 3.

COLLEGE STUDENTS INJURED IN CRASH

Agnes Scott Girl Critically Hurt as Car, Truck Collide.

Six college students were injured, one critically, late yesterday afternoon when a car in which they were riding collided with a DeKalb county convict truck at Memorial drive and Redan road, N. E. The truck driver and a convict guard also were injured.

The most seriously injured was Miss Doris Sexton, 18, student at Agnes Scott College, riding in a back seat of an automobile police said was driven by I. H. Wallmeyer, of Georgia Tech. Passengers in the car were two other Agnes Scott students, Miss Anita Howard and Miss Sadie Sloan, and two other Georgia Tech boys, C. N. Stephenson and Jerry Bozeman. Driver of the truck was Claude Merritt, 55, and John Wilson, guard at the DeKalb county camp.

The injured students were taken to Emory University hospital. Merritt and Wilson were treated by a DeKalb county physician for cuts.

RAYBURN RENAMED BY TYPOGRAPHERS

Jack Walker Is Re-elected Vice President.

F. T. Rayburn was re-elected president of the Atlanta Typographical Union, while Jack Walker was renamed vice president, a count of votes cast in yesterday's general election showed last night.

L. H. Pinkus, of The Constitution chapel, and E. R. Sweat, of the Journal chapel, were elected delegates to the International Typographical Union conference to be held in Birmingham, Ala., this fall.

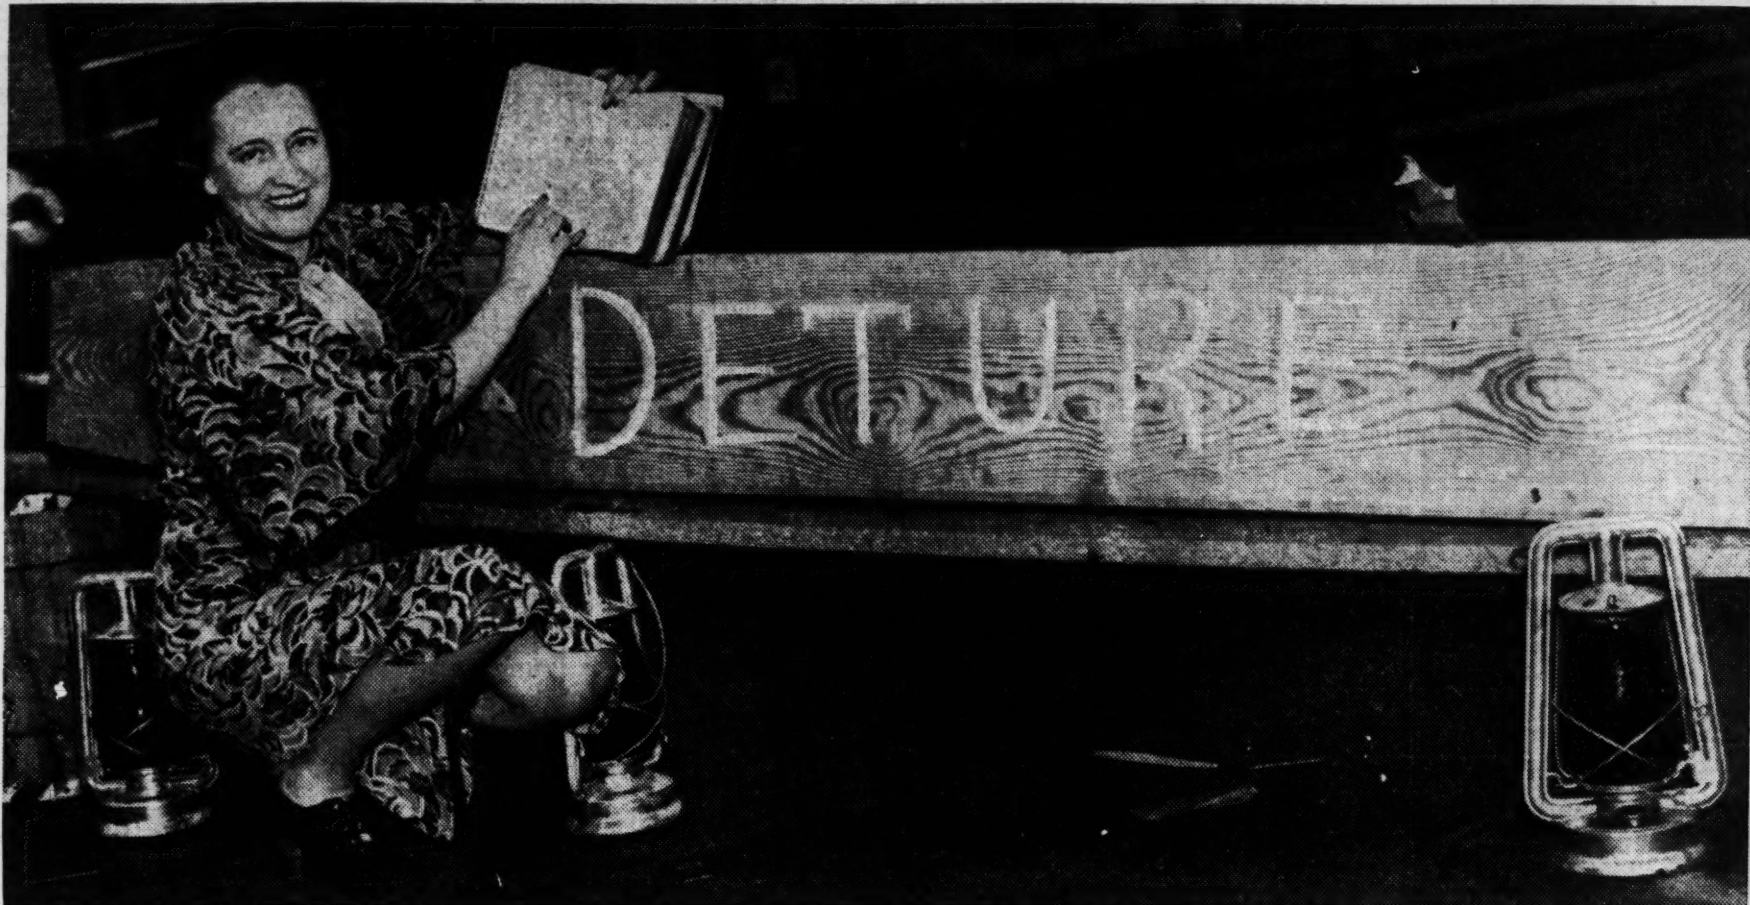

By a vote of 202 to 115, C. M. Baker, of Los Angeles, Cal., led C. P. Howard, incumbent, of Indianapolis, Ind., in the local balloting for national president of the organization.

FIRE VICTIM'S BODY TAKEN TO N. C. HOME

The body of William A. Clapp, of Randleton, N. C., who died Tuesday night in a private hospital of burns received in the Terminal hotel fire, was taken to his home town yesterday for funeral services and burial.

Clapp, one of the first to leave the flaming hotel, had been in critical condition since he was admitted to the hospital. His death brought the death total from the fire to 35.

Eh, What's This Again Now? It's Wrong, but on Other Hand It's Right!

This is a sign which greeted motorists on the Spring street viaduct yesterday. You won't find the word in the dictionary, as Miss Alice Warlich Leeper, of Chicago, demonstrates. The "deture" sign is to direct traffic around the shell of the Terminal hotel building which is being razed. Though everybody said they did not know who was responsible for the spelling, "deture" directed cars off the viaduct just as well as "detour" would have done. And besides, it got its picture in the paper.
